AF Must Discharge 21,000 More Airmen; 3000 Officers To Be Separated In '58

(AF Strength, Page 8)

THE Air Force, hit by a second cut of 25,000 military personnel, has told of plans for early separation next year of 21,000 airmen and the release of 3,000 officers—1,600 of them on an involuntary basis.

The Air Force had been told previously to cut from 925,000 to 900,000.

Then came the order from Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson to drop another 25,000 men. The new Air Force goal for the end of the current fiscal year is 875,000.

The Air Force said the 900,000 strength had envisioned 136,800 officers and 763,200 enlisted men.

The 875,000 force will have 133,000 officers and 742,000 enlisted men.

Present reduction plans to meet the 875,000 force limit are:

OFFICERS—1,400 Reserve officers who have a normal date of separation in FY '59, will be released approximately 3 months early, during last half of FY '58. Approximately 1,600 officers will be involuntarily released during last half FY '58.

AIRMEN—Approximately 21,000 airmen in grades E-3 and E-4 with dates of separation in FY '59 will be released approximately 3 months early, during last quarter of FY '58.

RECALL AND DIRECT APPOINTMENT PROGRAM—The Recall and Direct Appointment objectives were reduced from 1,164 to 550. This reduction of 614 covers the entire FY '58 from the 925,000 to the 875,000 ceilings.

Program changes known to result from the 875,000 force ceiling are as follows:

AFROTC PROGRAM: No substantial change is contemplated, however, some rephrasing is necessary to adjust to the reduced pilot training rates.

OCS PROGRAM: No reduction contemplated.

REGULAR WARRANT OFFICER APPOINTMENTS: 200 Regular WOs will be appointed during FY '58.

FLYING TRAINING PROGRAM: Downward adjustments are planned. Aviation cadets will probably not be affected. Fewer training spaces for AFROTC Officers will result from reduced pilot training rates.

Force Out Thousands P. 2
Marine Corps Prospects P. 32

Secretary Charles E. Wilson's order for a military manpower cutback to 2,600,000 (Text, Page 2) will cost the Army a 21 division, probably the 1st Armored at Ft. Hood, Tex.

The Army also will eliminate between 15 and 20 anti-aircraft gun battalions in the United States and overseas, and sharply reduce activities at a number of installations.

The Air Force, which had been building towards 137 wings, then looped to a revised goal of 128, now is in a dive towards a new strength of about 123 wings.

The Navy, which previously had disclosed plans to mothball 60 ships including the last of the battleships, will put about 35 more ships out of action to get within new budget limitations. This will leave the Navy with less than 900 ships.

The foregoing were more of the force level cutback prospects as THE JOURNAL went to press.

They result from Secretary Wilson's directive for a second fiscal '58 100,000 manpower reduction.

The economy order—a third personnel cut is anticipated next year—has forced all the Services to take a new look at personnel policies.

Details concerning the impact of the new slash on promotions, early discharges and retirements are told in this issue.

USCG ESCAPES CUTS

The Coast Guard has escaped—at least for the present—budget cuts imposed on all the other military services.

The Coast Guard, which operates under the Secretary of the Treasury, hopes to maintain the full operating force approved by Congress.

Some Coast Guard activities, such as operation of the ocean weather and loran stations, are funded by the Department of Defense. These conceivably must be cut back at the order of the Pentagon, although there is no present indication of such a reduction.

Marine Corps Board Selects 163 Majors

PROMOTIONS to Major in the Marine Corps dropped for the third consecutive year as a selection board chose 163 captains.

This is 68 fewer than last year. The fiscal year '56 board named 594 and the year before that 1668 were selected for Major.

Included in this year's selection are 117 Unrestricted, eight Supply Duty, 35 Limited Duty and three Reserve officers.

Analysis of the 1 Jan. 1957 combined lineal list shows 167 Unrestricted officers were in the zone, extending from Capt. Lawrence A. Marousek, No. 424, through Capt. Francis W. Tief, No. 612.

Of the number in the zone, the board named 113, including eight Supply Duty officers, or a selection rate of 67.6 per cent.

The board passed over 54 officers for the first time.

The board also selected 13 Unrestricted officers above the zone, including William J. Andre, an aviator. He is the only pilot named from above the zone.

Out of 18 Leatherneck fliers in the zone, 16 were chosen.

Here is the lineal list of the Marine Corps selectees to major. Symbols preceding names indicate the categories of officers as follows: *LDO; †SDO; and, INA.

Strike Back Displays NATO Naval Readiness In Critical Area; Admiral Wright's Forces Near End Of Greatest Sea Exercise

ABOARD USS SARATOGA
NORWEGIAN SEA

THE Navies of the free nations of the North Atlantic are just completing their greatest series of exercises, extending from the Norwegian Sea, the Atlantic and to the eastern shores of the Mediterranean.

Designed to test and strengthen the ability of ships of the various nations to work together, the exercises included all types of submarines, surface ships and naval aircraft of the free world, as well as amphibious forces.

Types of exercises included submarine warfare, antisubmarine warfare, surface raiding and defense against surface raiders, naval support of ground operations, landing force operations, replenishment at sea, air strikes against ground targets, and many others.

LARGEST OF THE SERIES is Strike Back, centering in the North Atlantic and the Norwegian Sea and including operations within the Arctic circle. Participating are ships from Britain, Canada, France, the Netherlands, Belgium, Norway, Denmark, Portugal and the United States Second Fleet.

Within a few hundred miles to the northeast, in the area around the Novaya Zemlya, the expanding Russian Fleet is flexing its muscles in a 35-day maneuver involving "different types of modern weapons."

Strike Back began 19 September with the ships making their rendezvous south of the Iceland-Faeroes area. After topping off on fuel, their main force formed up for passage through the gap against an array of submarines blocking their way, much in the way submarines of the Red Navy would be employed in actual war.

Following this phase, the fleet proceeded north and east working up its skills against submarine and surface raiders, sending out air strikes against targets in England, Scotland, Norway and Denmark, giving air support to ground troops maneuvering in northern Denmark, and defending itself against land based bombers of the RAF operation.

Pentagon Posts Set For Two Maj. Gens.

Army Major Board Meets 15 October

A bright spot turned up in the Army personnel picture late this week when the Pentagon said a selection board would meet 15 Oct. to consider officer for Temporary Major.

Selections will be made in the Army, Chaplain, WAC, and Medical Service promotion lists.

It is estimated the board will take until 29 Nov. to complete its work.

Previously announced zones remain in effect.

Sailors Soon May Be Knee Deep In Socks

Knee-length socks for wear with the white tropical and khaki tropical short trouser uniform may be added to the sailors' tropical uniform for use next summer.

The Navy currently is conducting a wear test at the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md.

Sailors there are wearing both black and white socks.

Current uniform regulations require enlisted men to wear black ankle length socks with black shoes when they are in tropical uniform.

Although both white and black knee-length socks are being tested it is likely the black model will be chosen.

This is because of the fact that the Navy is not likely to switch to white shoes for enlisted men.

Services Must "Rif" Thousands Of Officers

THE Army, Navy and Air Force will be required to release involuntarily thousands of officers to get within new budget ceilings, it was authoritatively reported at the Pentagon this week.

The Marine Corps stated, however, that it would be able to reduce its strength without any officer force-outs.

The forced separation of Reserve officers from active duty points up the failure by the Pentagon to send to Congress legislation providing pay benefits for such persons in time for action during the last session.

This measure would provide increased benefits for career Reservists who are eliminated from active duty because of reductions in force.

Marine Boards Pick Officers For 3 Ranks

Brig. Gen. Ronald D. Salmon, Director, Marine Corps Development Center, Quantico, Va., is president of two boards in session to name Marines for promotion.

One board is selecting women for advancement to Lt. Col., Maj. and Capt.

The second board is considering 1st Lt's for captain. Eligible are Lt's. who will have completed two years' service in grade by 30 June 1958 and who are not restricted in performance of duty. The zone ends with 1st Lt. Kenneth J. Skipper, lineal position 1310.

The board also is looking at LDO's through 1st Lt. James A. Weatherstone, lineal number 768.

AMATEUR GOLF CHAMP

First Lt. Hillman Robbins, Blytheville AFB, Ark., is the new U. S. Amateur Golf Champion.

This year's Armed Forces Champion, Lieutenant Robbins won his latest title by defeating California dentist Frank Taylor in a 32-hole battle at the Brookline, Mass., Country Club. He is a member of the U. S. Walker Cup Team.

SecDef Wilson Orders New Cuts, "Without Impairment" Of Security

The following is the text of the memorandum sent by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson to the Service Secretaries on 19 September.

ON July 16, 1957, the President approved my memorandum to him recommending a reduction in military personnel during the first half of Fiscal 1958. Since that time we have continued to examine our overall personnel program for the remainder of FY '58 in relation to our preliminary personnel studies for FY '59. As a result of these further studies and discussions, I have recommended, and the President has approved, a further reduction during the last half of FY '58 to a maximum end strength of 2,608,000, as follows:

Army	900,000
Navy	645,000
Marine Corps	188,000*
Air Force	875,000
	2,608,000

*8,000 additional reduction from Marine Corps to 180,000 is planned to occur early in FY '59.

These new objectives can be accomplished within the framework of a balanced military program and without impairment of our national security through (1) improvement of efficiency and elimination of nonessentials and duplication in administrative and logistical support activities, both in the U. S. and abroad; (2) capitalizing on technological advances; (3) developing to the fullest extent the effective combat capability of smaller, more mobile forces; and (4) reducing turn-over of trained, effective combat-trained personnel, and thereby reducing the number required to be in training pipelines for replacement purposes.

Except for our announced reductions in Japan, this program is to be achieved without materially affecting our deployments of major combat units abroad.

It is important that these reductions in military personnel be made as promptly as possible. Therefore, it is requested that you submit to me by September 27, 1957, monthly plans to achieve the maximum rate of reduction designed to accomplish the above objectives. These should be submitted through the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower, Personnel and Reserve).

In addition to making these personnel adjustments promptly, I urge those responsible in the three Services, both military and civilian, to continue aggressively the search for savings which can be made in Defense expenditures with a view to maintaining necessary military capabilities and avoiding reduction in combat forces.

B/G. Roberts Vacates Pentagon I&E Post

Brig. Gen. Carson A. Roberts, Director of Armed Forces Information and Education, will become temporary Inspector General of the Marine Corps on 1 Oct.

General Roberts, who was recently chosen for two-star rank, will hold the post until 15 Nov when Maj. Gen. Homer L. Litzberg takes the position. General Litzberg is enroute from Korea.

800 Navy Officers Will Be Involuntarily Released; VAdm Holloway Tells Details

Approximately 1500 officers and 13,500 enlisted men will be slashed from the Navy's end strength by 30 June 1958.

The cuts are in compliance with Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's second manpower reduction order in two months. They will pare total Navy strength to 645,000.

Of total number of officers being eliminated, about 800 will be involuntarily released.

Vice Adm. James L. Holloway, Jr., Chief of Naval Personnel, said the cuts will be made in the following way:

1. By continuing to release Reserve officers three months early during the second half of FY 1958. These are officers who are serving their initial tours of obligated duty, and who are scheduled for release before 30 June. About 700 will be given early releases.

2. By releasing to inactive duty about 500 Reserve captains, commanders, lieutenant commanders and lieutenants.

3. By offering 300 Temporary commanders, lieutenant commanders and lieutenants the choice of reverting to enlisted rank or being retired. Since the law provides that a man may retire in the highest rank in which he has served satisfactorily, the majority of these officers may elect to leave the service.

4. By continuing to release Regular and Reserve enlisted men two months early during the second half of FY 1958.

The Navy said Temporary officers will be released in inverse order of their positions on Priority for Retention Lists which have been established by the Bureau of Naval Personnel. Reserve officers will be released in the same manner from lists which are being established by a board now in session.

In general, the Navy said, Reserve officers who will have 18 or more years toward their retirement on 30 June '58, will not be involuntarily released.

Those reverted, released or retired will be notified by letter at least four months in advance whenever possible, the Navy said.

The majority of releases to inactive duty will not be effected until after 1 March.

Army's Seneca 'Copters Tested By Air Force

The first of Cessna Aircraft Co.'s YH-41 "Seneca" helicopters has been delivered for engineering evaluation tests at Edwards AFB, Calif.

Later, at Ft. Rucker, Ala., other Senecas will undergo testing by the Army Aviation Board, the Transportation Supply and Maintenance Command and the Army Aviation School.

Seneca officials state that the YH-41 will be the Army's highest performance small helicopter.

The Seneca has a maximum gross weight of 3,000 pounds and a useful load of 950 pounds. It is powered by a 270 hp Continental FSO 526A engine.

Prior to the first delivery, the Army and Air Force Contract Technical Compliance Inspection Board met at the Cessna factory to study the helicopter's design. Board members included Lt. Col. R. J. Hagreen, USAF, Air Materiel Command, chairman; Col. W. G. Duncan, USAF, Air Research and Development Command; Lt. Col. F. S. Smith, USAF, Deputy CofS Materiel of AMC; Col. R. R. Williams, USA, of the Army Aviation Board; Col. J. L. Marinelli, USA, Deputy CofS Logistics for the Army; and Maj. R. E. Brannan, USA, of the Office of the Chief of Transportation Corps, Army.

On The Way Down

These tables show how military manpower, at a 2,800,000 level during the past fiscal year, will drop by 100,000 before 31 December and dip a second 100,000 before the end of the fiscal year.

On July 16, Secretary Wilson announced reductions in military personnel to the level of 2,700,000 to be effected by December 31, 1957.

These reduction were to be as follows:

Army	50,000
Navy	15,000
Air Force	25,000
Marine Corps	10,000

Reductions under last week's order:

Army	50,000
Navy	15,000
Air Force	25,000
Marine Corps	2,000

Overall Strength Figures at the 2,700,000 level:

Army	950,000
Navy	660,000
Air Force	900,000
Marine Corps	190,000

Overall Strength Figures at Original FY 58 level of 2,800,000.

Army	1,000,000
Navy	675,000
Air Force	925,000
Marine Corps	200,000

Latest reports from the military services, show following estimated strength as of August 31:

*Army	990,000
*Navy	678,000
Air Force	922,200
Marine Corps	199,500

UP TO SERVICES NOW

The Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps this week were stuck with the problem of how to find money to launch the enlisted proficiency pay program at a time of severe budget cuts.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson told his news conference last week that it was up to the Services to work out rules for starting the program he announced in May.

A Pentagon spokesman said subsequently that the Services were studying the problem to find out how much money could be squeezed from the budget to provide increases of $12 to $50 per month for enlisted men with needed skills.

From the start, the Services have been less than enthusiastic about Secretary Wilson's "patchwork" action in announcing the enlisted pay boosts, instead of endorsing the full Cordier Report.

Deep Freeze Data Told In New Antarctic Map

For the first time in cartographic history, a general map based on current exploration has been completed and published swiftly enough to be used on the scene by the explorers themselves.

The new chart, issued by the National Geographic Society, will accompany the scientists of Operation Deep Freeze III when the expedition's ships sail south in October. It has also been supplied to the Society's more than 2,200,000 members around the world with the September issue of National Geographic Magazine.

Data from Operation Deep Freeze I and II are included, with information from the men currently stationed in the Antarctic area.

In the map's notes the reader can follow the history of explorations of the continent from the first recorded crossing of the Antarctic Circle by the British Navigator James Cook. Noted also is the first announcement that the continent existed, given by Navy Lt. Charles Wilkes in 1840.

Copies of the 29 x 36, ten color map may be obtained from the National Geographic Society in Washington, D. C. The cost is 75c each, postpaid.

Official Documents Tell Service Role In Historic Action At Little Rock

Here are the official documents which Federalized the Arkansas National Guard and sent units of the 101st Airborne Division into action in the Little Rock crisis:

They include President Eisenhower's Executive Order, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson's implementing order, and a statement for the press by Army Secretary Wilber M. Brucker:

EXECUTIVE ORDER

PROVIDING ASSISTANCE FOR THE REMOVAL OF AN OBSTRUCTION OF JUSTICE WITHIN THE STATE OF ARKANSAS WHEREAS on September 23, 1957, I issued Proclamation No. 3204, reading in part as follows:

"WHEREAS certain persons in the State of Arkansas, individually and in unlawful assemblages, combinations, and conspiracies, have wilfully obstructed the enforcement of orders of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Arkansas with respect to matters relating to enrollment and attendance at public schools, particularly at Central High School, located in Little Rock School District, Little Rock, Arkansas; and

"WHEREAS such wilful obstruction of justice hinders the execution of the laws of that State and of the United States, and makes it impracticable to enforce such laws by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings; and

"WHEREAS such obstruction of justice constitutes a denial of the equal protection of the laws secured by the Constitution of the United States and impedes the course of justice under those laws:

"NOW, THEREFORE, I, Dwight D. Eisenhower, President of the United States, under and by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the United States, including chapter 15 of title 10, of the United States Code, particularly sections 332, 333, and 334 thereof, do command all persons engaged in such obstruction of justice to cease and desist therefrom, and to disperse forthwith"; and

"WHEREAS the command contained in that proclamation has not been obeyed and wilful obstruction of enforcement of the said court orders still exists and threatens to continue:

NOW, THEREFORE, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and statutes of the United States, including chapter 15 of title 10, particularly sections 332, 333, and 334 thereof, and section 301 of title 3 of the United States Code, it is hereby ordered as follows:

Section 1. I hereby authorize and direct the Secretary of Defense to order into the active military service of the United States as he may deem appropriate to carry out the purpose of this order, any or all of the units of the National Guard of the United States and of the Air National Guard of the United States within the State of Arkansas to serve in the active military service of the United States for an indefinite period and until relieved by appropriate orders.

Section 2. The Secretary of Defense is authorized and directed to take all appropriate steps to enforce any orders of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Arkansas for the removal of obstruction of justice in the State of Arkansas with respect to matters relating to enrollment and attendance at public schools in the Little Rock School District, Little Rock, Arkansas. In carrying out the provisions of this section, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to use the units, and members thereof, ordered into the active military service of the United States pursuant to section 1 of this order.

Section 3. In furtherance of the enforcement of the aforementioned orders of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Arkansas, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to use such of the Armed Forces of the United States as he may deem necessary.

Section 4. The Secretary of Defense is authorized to delegate to the Secretary of the Army or the Secretary of the Air Force, or both, any of the authority conferred upon him by this order.

THE SECRETARY OF DEFENSE WASHINGTON Order

I, Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of Defense of the United States of America, by virtue of the direction to me from the President of the United States under Executive Order dated 24 September 1957, entitled "Providing Assistance for the Removal of an Obstruction of Justice within the State of Arkansas," hereby call into the Federal service all of the units and the members thereof of the Army National Guard and Air National Guard of the State of Arkansas, to serve in the active military service of the United States for an indefinite period and until relieved by appropriate orders.

I order the members of such National Guard units to hold themselves in readiness for further orders as to the time and date of reporting to active duty by the Secretary of the Army acting for me.

Copies hereof shall be furnished forthwith to the Governor of Arkansas and to the commanding officers of the Army National Guard and Air National Guard of the State of Arkansas.

I further direct that the Secretary of the Army take such action as he deems necessary to implement such Executive Order and this Order, and I hereby vest in the Secretary of the Army the right to exercise any and all of the authority conferred upon me by sections 2 and 3 of the above mentioned Executive Order of 24 September 1957.

C. E. Wilson
Secretary of Defense

24 September 1957

STATEMENT FOR THE PRESS BY SECRETARY OF THE ARMY BRUCKER

In pursuance of the order of Secretary of Defense Wilson signed at 2:25 P.M. Eastern Daylight Time calling the Arkansas National Guard into Federal Service, Secretary of the Army Brucker at 2:50 P.M. Eastern Daylight Time today notified Lt. Governor Gordon, Acting Governor of Arkansas, that the Arkansas Army National Guard and Air National Guard were called into Federal Service as of that moment, and that a confirming message was on the way. At the same time he sent a telegram to Governor Faubus and Lt. Governor Gordon of Arkansas, he called Lt. Governor Gordon on the telephone and personally gave him the full context of Secretary Wilson's order.

Earlier, the Army issued orders for 500 men from the 101st Airborne Division located at Ft. Campbell, Kentucky, to proceed immediately to Little Rock. These troops are on the way and will be in Little Rock shortly.

Further, Mr. Brucker immediately designated Major General Edwin A. Walker, Chief, Military District of Arkansas, as Commander of all troops assigned to the area, including the regular Army unit, and the Federalized units of the National Guard that will be needed.

It is anticipated that only selected units of the Arkansas National Guard will be needed for immediate duty, although it is made clear that all units of the Arkansas Army and Air National Guard are now in Federal Service and are ordered to report to their Armories.

Texas General Heads Little Rock Forces

A Texas-born USMA '31 graduate, Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, USA, this week was given the task of commanding the military forces sent to Little Rock, Ark., at the order of President Eisenhower on 24 September.

He commands units of the 101st Airborne Division, dispatched from Ft. Campbell, Ky., and the Army and Air National Guard units of Arkansas that were Federalized.

General Walker was born 10 Nov. 1909 at Center Point, Tex., and in June 1957, after commanding the 25th Infantry Division Artillery in Hawaii, was made Chief of the Arkansas Military District, with headquarters at Little Rock.

During WW II he was Commanding Officer, 3d Regiment, 1st Special Service Force in the Aleutians; Commanding Officer, 1st Special Service Force, Italy, France, and Germany; and Commanding Officer, 474th Infantry Regiment, Germany and Norway.

He has also held positions as Staff Officer, Plans and Operations Division, Office of the Chief of Staff, Washington, D. C.; General Staff Secretary, Fourth Army; and Assistant Commandant, Ranger Training Command, Ft. Benning, Ga.

Army Will Be Forced To Separate 4,000 More Officers; Promotions Hold

The Army this week appeared to be under compulsion to eliminate 4,000 more Reserve officers from active duty next year.

This is essential to meet requirements of the second 50,000 cut in Army manpower.

The first cut of 50,000 brought announcement from the Army that 1,550 officers and 480 warrant officers would receive 60-day notices of their separation.

The expectation now is that the second order will result in as many as 4,000 more officer separations. Notifications probably will be sent out late this year or in January, with separations to take place by the end of March.

Gen. Caraway at Riley

Brig. Gen. Forrest C. Caraway has been assigned as Commanding General of non-division special troops at Ft. Riley, Kans. General Caraway formerly was Chief, Joint Middle East Planning Committee in Washington. He resides at Quarters No. 4 Barry Ave., with his wife and daughter, both named Betty.

Preventive Medicine Volume

Preventive psychiatry is introduced for the first time in a military text book in a new work on military preventive medicine just prepared by Brooke Army Medical Center, Ft. Sam Houston, Tex.

The 785-page book deals with many topics not incorporated into any similar work.

Capt. Blodgett Is PIO

The new Ft. Lewis, Wash. Information Officer is Capt. Forrest C. Blodgett. He was sports editor and assistant night editor of the Oregon City Enterprise (now the Courier-Enterprise) before entering the Army.

These forecasts are subject to change as the Army completes its survey of the manpower situation.

In addition to the new force-outs, there is little doubt that the Army will give early releases to thousands of additional soldiers and will tighten further the restrictions on reenlistments for men with "marginal" capabilities.

Early releases appear likely, up to three months, for thousands more late this year or by the Spring of 1958.

ON THE PROMOTION FRONT, Army officials remain hopeful that up to 90 per cent of the officer advancements planned for this fiscal year will be made. Plans continue firm for the convening in October of a board to select captains for temporary promotion to major.

AIM AND SHOOT—The Pacific Fleet Camera Group's three units at San Diego, Pearl Harbor, and Japan have adopted this insignia. It shows a nautical target with an aerial camera in his hands. In the background are the entire Pacific Ocean and its land masses. The primary task of phototriangulation of Gunnery exercises, which helps keep the Navy shooting straight, is the byword of Pacific Fleet Camera Group.

Cdr. Huber Back At Oakland

Cdr. Melvin P. Huber, MSC, for the second time has assumed duty as Administrative Officer, U. S. Naval Hospital, Oakland, Calif.

USNA Stadium Drive Gets Strong Support

RADM. WILLIAM R. SMEDBERG, III, Superintendent, U. S. Naval Academy, spearheaded a Nation-wide fund drive for the Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium on 23 Sept.

The admiral was interviewed over New York City's municipal station, WNYC, by Mary McDonnell.

On 26 Sept., RADM. John C. Bergen, USNR, National President of the Navy League, was a featured guest on the same program, "Around New York."

Although the initial programs were directed to New Yorkers in the Metropolitan area, Mr. Seymour N. Siegel, Director of Radio Communication for the City of New York, stated that an expansion of the drive on a National level is planned. Mr. Siegel is a Naval Reserve captain.

Other programs scheduled on WNYC include interviews with Jules Alberti, National Civilian Coordinator for the Memorial, and Capt. Eugene B. Fluckey, the Navy's most decorated officer in WWII.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the memorial stadium are planned for the Spring of 1958.

Navy Cancels "Triton" Development Program

The Navy has cancelled the "Triton" guided missile program. Approximately $24 million had been expended on the surface-to-surface missile.

The Navy said it plans to continue modest support of the existing research and development team to incorporate the most desirable features of the "Triton" into future missile systems.

Development of the missile was under direction of the Applied Physics Laboratory of the Johns Hopkins University, Silver Spring, Md. Participants in the program were the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., St. Louis, Mo., the Goodyear Aircraft Corp., Akron, Ohio, and Kearfott Company, Inc., Clifton, N. J.

Admiral and Mrs. Russell will reside in the Commandant's quarters on Yerba Buena Island.

Former Navy PO's Score High At OCS

The Navy gained 479 officers with the recent graduation of Class No. 33 from the Officer Candidate School, Newport, R. I.

Of the total number who won gold bars, 212 are former senior petty officers who were selected for officer training under the "Seaman to Admiral" program. The remaining 267 are college graduates who entered OCS through the Office of Naval Officer Procurement.

Those who came in through the "Seaman to Admiral" plan received Regular commissions, while those who came from civilian universities and colleges received Reserve commissions.

The former petty officers took the top 27 places in final average standings.

Leading the list was Ens. Ernest W. Barker who scored 3.770 out of a possible 4.0. For his achievement he was presented a Naval Officer's sword by the Fleet Reserve Association. His first assignment as an officer will be aboard the destroyer USS Bronson.

In the number two academic slot was Ens. Ralph R. Maddox with a 3.710 average. He reports to the submarine USS Bergall.

Third was Ens. Gerald W. McDonald who scored 3.675. Ensign McDonald reports to NAS Pensacola, Fla., for flight training.

Top man among the college graduates was Ens. Donald S. Lee, a 1956 graduate of the University of Massachusetts, with a 3.540 average. His first duty assignment will be at the Civil Engineer Corps School, Ft. Hueneme, Calif.

Marine Corps Alters Marksman Badges

Redesigned marksman qualification badges have been adopted by the Marine Corps.

Headquarters expects the new badges to be available for distribution starting in Fiscal Year 1959. However, the Marine Corps has authorized eligible Leathernecks to buy them at Marine Corps Exchanges.

The uniform regulations provide that a badge must bear an approved serial number. Badges which do not have official numbers are non-regulation and may not be worn, Headquarters said.

The new badges have been changed as follows:

The holding bar design has been standardized; all are made of rhodium plated, sterling silver, and have clutch-type fasteners.

Expert Rifleman—The wreath is more clearly defined; crossed M-1 (Garand) rifles have been substituted in place of Model 1903 (Springfield).

Sharpshooter—A silver Marine Corps emblem has been superimposed on the center of the Maltese Cross.

Rifle Marksman—The badge consists of a holding bar, inscribed "Rifle Marksman," with a miniature silver replica of a rifle target attached to the bar.

Pistol Expert—The wreath is the same design as that used for the rifle expert badge, but shows two crossed .45 caliber pistols.

Pistol Sharpshooter—The style and design is the same as, but smaller than, the rifle sharpshooter badge.

Pistol Marksman—The badge is the same as the rifle marksman badge, except in miniature.

Black Sheep's New Leader

Lt. Col. John F. Bolt, USMC, the only Mig ace of the Navy and Marine Corps, will assume command of the "Black Sheep" Marine Attack Squadron at Kaneohe, Hawaii, after completion of the Fleet Air Gunnery School, El Centro NAS, Calif.

He recently was graduated from the Special Weapons Delivery School, El Toro, Calif.

RAdm. W. J. W. Woods, Royal Navy, succeeds VAdm. Sir John Eaton, Royal Navy, as Deputy Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic, in January.

Admiral Woods currently is Flag Officer, Submarine in the British Navy, and also holds the NATO Command, Submarine Force, Eastern Atlantic.

A new post for Admiral Eaton, who has been Deputy to Admiral Jerauld Wright, Supreme Allied Commander, Atlantic, since 3 Nov. 1955, has not been announced.

Today, more than ever before in history, oil is a vital commodity of freedom. And the tanker that carries oil is truly a citadel of freedom.

Above, you see such a vessel . . . one of several new Cities Service tankers incorporating the latest in design, efficiency and speed. And Cities Service is building still newer tankers to keep not abreast, but ahead of the constantly growing demand for these magnificent work horses of the petroleum industry.

These ships are designed to carry oil to ports all over the world. Designed to transport twice the oil of former tankers . . . with each one capable of carrying enough fuel oil to heat 15,500 homes for a year! And, designed to load, travel and unload at amazing speeds, too. For today, it is clear that speed of delivery can be as important as the oil cargo itself.

But, before this mighty fleet can travel at all, its cargo of oil must be found and produced. Thus, in the arctic tundra, in deserts, bayous, offshore waters, and oil fertile valleys throughout the world, Cities Service is now pushing forward the greatest oil search in its history . . . planning to find more oil in the next few years than in its entire history of nearly a half-century!

Finding and delivering more oil is part of a giant expansion program which will enable Cities Service to continue contributing toward a better world for all.

Air Force Reports
135,597 Officers

The Air Force, now under orders to drop to a strength of 875,000 this fiscal year, obviously will have to make significant cuts in officer strength.

Statistics made available at the Pentagon this week show that the Air Force at the start of last month had 135,597 officers on active duty.

This included 11 generals, 23 lieutenant generals, 165 major generals and 227 brigadier generals.

There were also 4,660 colonels, 9,652 lieutenant colonels, 22,240 majors and 41,667 captains.

The Air Force also had 42,644 first lieutenants and 14,308 second lieutenants.

AIRMEN GRADE DISTRIBUTION reveals that the Air Force is headed for difficulties in providing advancement opportunities.

There are 419,380 airmen in the top four grades, which is more than one-half the total enlisted strength projected for this fiscal year.

The Air Force has 55,182 master sergeants, 69,460 technical sergeants, 136,756 staff sergeants and 157,982 airmen first class.

Gen. Sullivan Takes Bomb Wg.

Brig. Gen. Henry R. Sullivan, Commander, 21st Air Division, Forbes AFB, Kans., will replace Brig. Gen. Bertram K. Harrison as Commander of the 72d Bomb Wing, Ramey AFB, P.R. General Harrison's new assignment has not been announced.

USAF ACADEMY AWARD—Col. Benjamin B. Cassidy, jr., left, Deputy Commandant of Cadets, and Col. A. J. Blood, right, 312th Fighter-Bomber Group, present the 81st Fighter Wing Memorial Award to the Air Force Cadet Wing. Accepting the award are Cadets James Hourin, and Stuart Boyd.

Nine Story Hospital
Opens At Lackland AFB

A new hospital has been put into operation at Lackland AFB, Tex.

In Lackland's "Operation Bigswitch," the opening was accompanied by the movement of more than 400 bed-patients and 350 medical personnel into the new nine-story 3700th USAF Hospital building. The move vacates 31 old, barracks-type ward buildings constructed during WW II.

Present capacity of the new hospital, commanded by Col. John H. Plueneke, is 500 beds. Some older structures will continue to be used until construction is completed on a new two-corridor wing to double capacity.

In full operation, the hospital will serve 30 Air Force installations in the Southwestern U. S.

Donaldson Flyers Deepfreeze-Bound

Globemasters from Donaldson AFB S. C., will support the Navy's Operation Deepfreeze, Phase III. Their principal mission will be to resupply the seven recently built Antarctic stations with equipment, personnel and food.

Although five of the stations are located on coastal areas and can be reached by Navy icebreakers, two inland sites must be resupplied entirely by air.

Col. William G. Forwood has been designated Air Force Task Unit Commander for the operation by Brig. Gen. E. Wade Hampton, Commander of the 63d Troop Carrier Wing. The Airdrop mission will be carried out by the 53d Troop Carrier Squadron of the 61st Troop Carrier Group, commanded by Lt. Col. Dixon J. Arnold.

Over-all operational, administrative and logistical responsibility remains with RAdm. George Dufek, USN-Ret., Commander of Navy Task Force 43. This task force consists of 10 ships, 23 aircraft, 13 helicopters and over 4,000 personnel.

In addition to the flying crews and support personnel for the C-124 Globemasters, the men of the 1710th Aerial Port Squadron, commanded by Lt. Col. Michael C. Zinkovich, will prepare and load all equipment for airdrop and eject all cargo during the airdrop missions.

Donaldson personnel will occupy Royal New Zealand Air Force Station Weedons, located approximately 15 miles from Christchurch, New Zealand. The 53d Squadron will be a complete, self-sustaining unit with food service, air police, medical and weather personnel being assigned to it for the special mission.

Smooth-functioning windshield wipers that are dependable in every extreme of temperature, atmosphere and weather are a must for today's aircraft. Pilots need clear vision all the way — all the time. Other means of keeping windshields clean have been tried, but only wipers answer all the requirements . . . wipers made by the Marquette Metal Products Division of Curtiss-Wright.

Marquette Windshield Wipers are in use by virtually every airline in the world, and are standard on seventeen current military production aircraft—including advanced jet types. Light in weight, strong and positive in action, ruggedly constructed with the most powerful converter mechanism built today, Marquette Windshield Wipers are tailored to the specific requirements of individual aircraft types, windshield contour, and airframe design. They do not add to aircraft drag. They meet or exceed the highest standards of the military and of the airlines.

Short-Sighted Policy. The Armed Services are being kept under tight wraps in making known to the public many outstanding weapons achievements. This is true at a time when the Soviet Union is scoring world-wide successes with its boasts of military prowess.

In our opinion, the Defense Department should revise its thinking and make emphatic by specific announcements the fact that we are assuring our citizens and the entire Free World weapons supremacy.

There is no question, for example, that both the Air Force and Navy are being thwarted in their efforts to make some official announcements concerning aircraft speeds. In this connection, one recalls the ludicrous situation last year when Lt. Col. "Pete" Everest of the Air Force was presented an award by then Air Force Secretary Donald A. Quarles for a flight in the Bell X-2 that the Air Force at that time was not allowed to acknowledge in any way.

The Nation and our Allies would be heartened if reports were made public—subject to security restrictions of course—on such new aircraft as the Lockheed F-104 and the Convair B-58.

Even more importantly, the policy of slamming the door shut on official details of missile firings is, in our judgment, misguided. First of all, this policy leads to much inaccurate reporting. This is because newsmen are unable to get answers to questions. Secondly, the paucity of official reports on missile progress is giving the Soviets an opportunity to claim bold superiority in this field.

We hazard the guess that the Russians now will tell the world at every opportunity that, having gained alleged advances in the ballistic missile field, the Communists want disarmament and elimination of all nuclear weapons—without agreeing, of course, to the necessity of effective inspection.

Our people, who pay the bill and whose lives and freedom are at stake, should receive from their Government more information about weapons progress than is now the case. Certainly, no one wants the Defense Department to release anything that would adversely affect security, but caution must be taken lest concern for security creates fears in the Free World and propaganda opportunities for the Communists.

Congressmen Abroad. This is the season—and particularly so in an off-election year—when scores of Senators and Representatives will make inspection trips overseas, many of the visits concerned primarily with military matters.

These trips, often the subject of considerable criticism, are important to the fighting forces. We believe it is vital that the representatives of the people see at first hand the job that U. S. Servicemen are doing in all corners of the world and how they and their families live.

We are hopeful that the present series of visits abroad will emphasize to legislators the need for improvements in the housing situation, and also the urgency of increasing funds for support of schools overseas.

There is, of course, always the likelihood that some "eager-beaver" Members of Congress will deem it politically wise to issue hastily contrived blasts at some Service activities abroad. Such charges invariably receive wide publicity. But during recent years, as more Congressmen have gone overseas, the Services have received much favorable comment from numerous veteran legislators.

Congress has a formidable responsibility in providing for the national security. It is essential that Senators and Representatives see on the spot how the taxpayers' money is being spent,

Dignify The Title

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Recently I observed the new Air Force film designed to encourage reenlistments. The picture excellently illustrates many attractive features of a military career. However, the cold feeling I get every time I hear or see the title "Non-commissioned Officer" was disturbingly present.

I am convinced that the title "Non-commissioned Officer" is NON descriptive, NON inspirational, NON attractive and NON contributory to obtaining re-enlistments.

How can one aspire to become a NON something or other?

Years and years ago positive expression was recognized as being the most effective.

To follow the Navy pattern, the Army and Air Force could entitle this great arm of the military service; "Petty," "Sukoshi" or "Piccolo" Officer, but here again we would do nothing to exalt the position. Neither do I go for "sub," "junior" or any other adjective which suggests inferiority.

The title should correctly describe the position; suggest authority and dignify the individual.

I have some ideas for a title but favor the expression of opinions of other military men.

As a starter, how about "Appointed Officer." They are appointed by a person authorized by law to do so. Or "Operations Officer," all the good ones I ever saw were operators.

Then we could have the "AO" or the "OO" Club.

Retired Tax Error

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

It is believed that you have made an error in your example of how to figure Federal income tax on physical disability pay.

You are correct in saying that individuals retired for disability pay tax only on that portion of their retired pay which is not covered by disability (percentage). Under P.L. 351, 81st Congress, percentage of disability is figured on basic pay (member may elect V.A. payment if he so desires).

In the example given, 75 per cent, his compensable percentage would have been listed as 80 per cent. The V.A. schedule for rating disabilities is given to the nearest 10 per cent.

A combined percentage of from 75 to 84 is recorded as 80 per cent, since, by law, the maximum retired pay with exception of Generals of the Army, etc., is 75 per cent of the basic pay, all $6,000 would be free from Federal income tax.

To give an example of how an officer retired for disability might pay income tax: A colonel with over 30 years' service is entitled to receive $9,134.40 active duty basic pay. If he retires for reasons other than disability, his annual retired pay would be 75 per cent of this, or $6,850.80. Now, if he is retired for dis-

the United States and overseas are opening a new season of activities. The meetings ahead are certain to see great quantities of coffee and tea consumed; and there will also be some pleasant sherry hours before luncheon meetings.

Beyond this cordiality, so important to morale in Service life where new friendships must be made constantly because of the frequent shift of assignments, Wives Clubs of the Services also will devote thousands and thousands of hours to welfare projects. They will assist doctors and nurses at military hospitals. They will finance and operate nurseries on posts, stations, and bases and will support and work at orphanages here and abroad.

We are proud of the great work done by Service wives, attractive "Ambassadors of Goodwill." THE JOURNAL looks forward in the months ahead to the publication of stories that will help everyone keep informed about what the ladies are doing.

QUOTES FROM THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago (27 Sept. 1947)—The U. S. Air Force successfully completed another experiment with its automatic flight control system 22 Sept. when a pilotless Douglas C-54 "Skymaster" landed at Brise Norton, 40 miles west of London, England, after a completely automatic, 2400-mile trans-Atlantic flight from Stephenville, Newfoundland.

50 Years Ago (28 Sept. 1907)—Our Canadian neighbors are deeply impressed with the advantages of the peep sight as demonstrated by the American team in the recent competition for the Palma Trophy, and are already adopting it to their own weapons. It does not appear that the addition of a peep to any of the sights would make them less likely to stand the rough usage of warfare.

90 Years Ago (28 Sept. 1867)—Galveston, New Orleans, Mobile and Pensacola mark the line of posts, extending all around the Gulf of Mexico, at which Yellow Jack has reported his presence. The first is the most afflicted. The place has 22,000 inhabitants, and if we allow the flight of one-third, certainly not a great estimate under such circumstances, about 15,000 of them will be left exposed to the disease.

ability as 30 per cent disabled, he could elect to have his retired pay figured for service. Then his total retired pay would be $6,850.80 on an annual basis. Of this, 30 per cent (or $2,055.24) of his basic pay would be tax free. Legally, he should report $4,110.48 (the difference between 75 per cent earned for service less 30 per cent of basic pay disability).

This letter is in reference to your item, "DC Retired Win $10,000 Tax Cut" on page 31 of the 14 Sept. JOURNAL.

Retired Pay Action

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

My attention has been invited to your article entitled "Officers Promoted During 32, 33, 34 to Win $1,400.00 Back Pay, etc." In this, your issue of 14 September, you say that the Retired Officers' Assn. sponsored the new Law. This is true as far as it goes.

I am and have been, for 20 years, a life member of the Retired Officers' Assn. The bulk of the credit for this legislation is due Robert F. Klepinger, an attorney of 1025 Connecticut Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C., who has worked unceasingly for almost 20 years to obtain this legislation, and to Hon. Cecil R. King, M.C. from Inglewood, Cal.

The legislative officer of the Retired Officers' Association assisted greatly and a number of retired officers gave of their time to assist.

Soldiers In Europe Receive Intensive Nuclear Medical Training; New Survival Aid Packet Being Considered For Field Test

By MAJ. GEN. ALVIN L. GORBY,
MC, USA,
Surgeon, U. S. Army Europe

AS the United States troops in Europe stand as a bulwark against aggression as an active arm of NATO, so does the U. S. Army Medical Service in Europe stand as an example of preparedness against the ravages of a nuclear attack. Intensive individual and unit training in the techniques of mass casualty management and survival care (first aid) have been carefully planned, practiced and rehearsed since the program was initiated nearly two years ago.

Maj. Gen. Gorby

A training program has been designed to teach every officer and all enlisted men and women in USAREUR how to take effective counter-measures against injuries which threaten life or limb under the austere conditions to be expected during and after detonation of Nuclear weapons.

In response to our request, The Surgeon General, Department of the Army, made available the services of the Mass Casualty Management Team from the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research. This team, while touring Germany and France, produced the stimulus needed in USAREUR to start a program of individual training. They visited and discussed the problems of medical management of mass casualties at Headquarters, U. S. Army, Europe; Headquarters, U. S. Army Communications Zone, Europe; Headquarters, Seventh U. S. Army and the headquarters of the various area commands, as well as the major medical installations in Germany and France.

THE OBJECTIVES of the medical training program were first established and then carried out as follows:

(1) Preparation of effective teaching material. Lesson plans covering subject matter deemed necessary to teach officers and enlisted personnel how to survive were prepared and distributed in April 1956. These lesson plans are divided into those for Army Medical Service personnel (Emergency Medical Care) and those for all other Army personnel (Survival Care).

(2) Establishment of instructors course. For the purpose of preparing qualified personnel to return to their units able to instruct others, a specifically designed course for instructors has been conducted on a recurrent basis.

(3) Continual practice of the techniques taught. During CPX's and FTX's of Seventh Army and NATO, the procedures and techniques previously taught are analyzed to determine weaknesses and strengths in the instruction.

(4) Establishment of a mass casualty research detachment. This unit was established and functions primarily to analyze data, to observe FTX's and CPX's, to prepare training material and to advise the Surgeon, United States Army, Europe, on matters pertaining to mass casualty management.

(5) Expansion of professional training. Medical officers and para-medical personnel in hospitals and dispensaries are continually given training intended to insure that they are capable of performing critical tasks required.

(6) Development of traveling team. In order to reach the consumer, a program of instruction, with appropriate training aids, is being developed on a traveling team concept. In other words

"take the material to the consumer" in order to reach the bulk of personnel, quicker, easier, and more effectively.

With these objectives firmly established, extensive lessons plans were written and distributed to all units in U. S. Army, Europe as training pamphlets and were accompanied by a U. S. Army, Europe circular, stating the objectives of training, delineating responsibilities, and establishing guide lines for implementation.

This training program is designed to:

(1) Expand the normal training given to Army Medical Service personnel to better qualify them as "up graded" technicians available immediately at the outbreak of hostilities to supplement the critical shortage of physicians and nurses. This expanded training would apply equally to non-surgical oriented physicians (internists, radiologists, pediatricians, etc.), dentists, veterinarians, nurses, medical service corps officers, dietitians, and physical therapists.

(2) Develop within the individual soldier and officer outside the Army Medical Service, the ability to render instantaneous self aid or buddy aid should the need arise. In other words, teach these people how to survive and help others to survive through survival care techniques in a period of disparity and austerity when trained medical personnel will be critically scarce.

THIS TRAINING PROGRAM has been satisfactorily pursued by medical installations and tactical units. Continued liaison and observation have stressed its importance and the methods required to improve the training. Several of the larger hospitals in Europe have developed intensive training programs for enlisted personnel. This method insures that all newly assigned personnel receive the mandatory training in "Emergency Medical Treatment" before receiving a duty assignment. This insures uniform training, enables the special training to be done without disturbing normal duty assignments and is accomplished in an atmosphere free of encumbrances. Concurrently driver training is likewise conducted before duty assignment. This training is of paramount importance in an area where planned evacuation routes are long and tedious and where more drivers are required than vehicles assigned.

Upon completion of distribution of the training pamphlets an instructors course was developed and conducted to train personnel as instructors. These additional instructors are capable of returning to their units as qualified instructors in survival care techniques. This course has been offered on a recurring basis, and the additional courses the instructors have taught serve to expand the base of knowledge.

During FTX's and CPX's in the past 18 months there has been an ever increasing stress on active medical participation especially when atomic-nuclear situations are introduced. "Operation Fireball" a Seventh Army medical FTX conducted by the 31st Medical Group in August 1956 was a direct outgrowth of the combined interests of Lt. Gen. Bruce C. Clark, Commanding General, Seventh U. S. Army, and the office of the USAREUR Surgeon in field testing medical capabilities under the atomic concept of war. Throughout "Operation Fireball" time-space factors were used, evacuation was by means normally available to a field army (i.e. litter jeep, ambulance, helicopter, ambulance train). In addition, naval support for crossing the Rhine river was supplied by the Rhine River Patrol, U. S. Naval Forces, Germany.

SIMULATED CASUALTIES, totaling over 2,000 participants, were realistically handled at each echelon of medical treatment where effective triage was employed, surgical patients cared for with application of appropriate dressings, plaster casts, etc. Intravenous medications were realistically used up to the point of inserting the needle. Operating tents, shock tents, and recovery wards were likewise actively played.

Professional personnel were made available to the 31st Medical Group to staff the Surgical Hospitals, Mobile Army and the Evacuation Hospitals in quantities which would be available at the outbreak of hostilities. These medical officers and army nurses made an effective contribution to the success of the exercise.

A critical analysis was made of the week long maneuver by a team of four senior officers of the Army Medical Service in Europe. They made recommendations for changes and improvements which should be made in training techniques and methods to insure that more efficient medical care is available to the injured soldier in an atomic war.

August 1957 will see another similar exercise conducted by medical troops of the Seventh Army to test current SOP's, training directives and to test the status of medical care in Seventh Army.

THESE EXERCISES have continued to prove invaluable in developing training doctrines applicable to an area where the threat of nuclear weapons realistically exists. Through incorporation of survival care training into tactical FTX's and CPX's, officers and enlisted personnel of combat and support units are obtaining a realistic indoctrination in survival. They learn that the initial steps to survival, in many instances, will depend upon their knowledge of survival care techniques and their ability to apply them to themselves and others should they be within the area of an atomic attack. A realistic wartime posture is being established for combat and support troops of the United States Army, Europe, of the same order as for medical personnel, to better withstand a nuclear attack.

The activation of the Mass Casualty Research Detachment located at Landstuhl Army Medical Center and under the operational control of the Surgeon, U. S. Army, Europe, has filled a noticeable void in the atomic warfare medical management program. This small detachment has innumerable missions all important to the successful fulfillment of medical operations in Europe. Members of this detachment act as consultants to General Gorby; maintain close liaison with the Department of Atomic Casualty Studies, Walter Reed Army Institute of Research; and participate as observers on Seventh Army and NATO field exercises for the purpose of making specific recommendations to General Gorby wherein medical care in atomic warfare can be improved. In addition, this detachment will prepare instructional material to be presented to the Special Weapons Classes conducted by the United States Army, Europe, Military Police, Intelligence, and Special Weapons School. The United States Army, Europe, Medical Training Center also receives the benefit of the mass casualty detachment's assistance in adding hours of instruction on atomic medicine to its curricula.

Recently a member of the mass casualty detachment completed a tour of all operating army hospitals in Germany and France for the purpose of teaching radiac instrumentation. Two courses were offered, one an 18 hour course at Station and Field hospitals and the other a 32 hour course at General hospitals. The purpose was to train selected individuals in the use of radiac instruments available to their installation in order to be prepared to combat the problem of radiological fallout as it affects the operations of a hospital unit. This instruction was exceedingly valuable and pointed up the requirements for additional courses of this type to be conducted on a recurring basis.

Army Navy Air Force Journal 11
28 Sept. 1957 (Vol. 95, P. 103)

CONTINUAL TRAINING of physicians to cope with the medical problems of atomic warfare is recognized as an absolute necessity. A program designed to train non-surgically oriented medical officers to a level where they can perform emergency traumatic surgery required during atomic combat has been developed and implementation begun. In addition, dental officers, and veterinary officers receive similar training in emergency surgical techniques. Para Medical personnel and ancillary medical service officers are taught emergency medical treatment designed to extend the medical officers' hands during and after a nuclear detonation. Nurses, for example, are taught how to perform minor surgical procedures, do venipunctures, and how to administer simple anaesthetic agents.

During Fiscal Year 1957 a four hour symposium was presented to the September 1956 USAREUR Medical-Surgical Conference. This program was modeled after the presentation by the team from the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research and acted as a refreshing stimulus to those in attendance. The medical-surgical conferences, always attended by large numbers of U.S. Army Medical officers, as well as U.S. Air Force and medical Officers of NATO countries, offer excellent opportunities to present current concepts of training required to counteract the disparity produced by nuclear weapons.

The Sixth SHAPE Medical Conference held in Paris, 24-26 April 1957 was devoted to the medical problems of nuclear warfare. At the direction of Maj. Gen. Silas B. Hays, The Surgeon General, Department of the Army, our staff presented a four hour three act play "Medical Management of Mass Casualties in Nuclear Warfare." This production outlined the expected medical disparity and presented ways and means required to combat this disparity. The audience, composed of Surgeons General of NATO countries, Army, Navy, and Air Arms, enthusiastically received the production and requests for additional showings were numerous.

In order to bring this timely subject before command and staff officers the play was presented to personnel of the various staff divisions at Headquarters, U. S. Army, Europe. An additional showing was given at the United States Army, Europe Medical-Surgical Conference in Berchtesgaden, Germany on 11 May 1957.

THE MEDICAL SERVICE of the U. S. Army, Europe, is not standing still but rather is taking every possible measure to continually look ahead and prepare for the future. An example not in the field of training is the medical supply strategic reserves. Carefully selected sites have been chosen and critical supply items stored therein. These critical items have been scrutinized for actual need in the face of nuclear warfare and are packaged so that each single element of the assembled pack is small enough to be carried by one man. Each assembled pack contains supplies sufficient to treat 100 casualties for 7 days and are stored in numbers commensurate with troop strength.

An individual first aid survival packet to replace the first aid pouch has been developed and forwarded to The Surgeon General for consideration. This packet is designed for carry by the individual soldier and attaches to the web belt, weighing less than one pound. It is presently being considered for field testing and perhaps subsequent adoption as a required item for combat troops.

From the amount of effort being expended in the medical service of United States Army, Europe, it is readily obvious that much has been done and is being done to create a better posture to meet the disparity produced by atomic warfare.

THE CRACK 101ST AIRBORNE'S swift shift of units from Ft. Campbell, Ky., to Little Rock, Ark., gave the Army a brilliant opportunity to dramatize how it could mobilize and move forces in a hurry on any kind of mission. The "Screaming Eagles," under Col. William Albert Kuhn, won acclaim for the precision-like manner in which they arrived and took up posts.

ONE LIKELY SIDE EFFECT of the President's busy week in connection with the Little Rock trouble has been the holdup in his approving new lists of Regular Army and Air Force officer appointments. The Pentagon is awaiting White House okay on a list of about 120 new Army Regulars. The Air Force has chosen 645, all of whom have at least 15 years' service. The AF appointments will be made in the permanent grade of Major. Selectees came from a group of 2,400 applicants.

NEW I & E CHIEF for the Armed Forces will be Brig. Gen. Sidney F. Giffin, USAF. He will replace Brig. Gen. Carson Roberts, USMC, selected for two-star rank. General Giffin, Vice Commandant of the Air War College, includes in his military service duty as an instructor at West Point. He is the first Air Force Officer to hold the post.

SOME ARMY OFFICERS WILL BE BITTER next year when they are released from active duty involuntarily after being required to buy new Green uniforms. The Army delayed from 1 October to 1 November the mandatory date for wearing the Green garb when the first cutback order was announced. This was done to alleviate personal hardships. However, Army officials said this week that a further delay could not be made. They conceded that some officers will buy new uniforms, only to learn that they are to be released before the end of this fiscal year.

IT'S INCREDIBLE BUT TRUE that some Reserve officers, in these days of sudden reversals in personnel policies, are asking that they NOT be promoted. The reason is this. Some officers have current overall efficiency ratings high enough to assure their retention in present rank, but not sufficiently high to guarantee continued service in higher rank. Some Reservists who have perhaps 16 or 17 years' service and are nearing retirement have asked that they not be promoted at this time.

ALL MILITARY PERSONNEL will applaud the order by Lt. Gen. B. M. Bryan, First Army Commander, establishing a personnel placement service to help find jobs for Service people involuntarily released from active duty. General Bryan expressed special concern for several hundred officers being released with more than 15 years' service.

SHORT MARINES must remain short. That's the order from Headquarters. Leathernecks are forbidden to wear double or platform soles and heels in a new order which also bans metal heel and toe plates and prescribes a specific polish for all brown dress shoes, combat boots and service shoes.

NAVY SHIP STRENGTH at the end of this fiscal year will be about 896. This recalls that the Navy hit a post-WWII low of 617 ships in FY 1950, just before Korea, a high of 1,129 in FY '53.

GENERAL TWINING IN HIS FIRST ADDRESS as JCS Chairman made a strong point at Sea Island, Ga., on 23 Sept. in favor of action to provide "stability and efficiency" in the military forces. He did not specifically come out in support of the Cordier Plan, but said "it is wrong when we cannot provide sufficient incentive to a young man manning a million dollar radar, guiding a million dollar fighter over a city worth billions to remain in the Service."

THE JCS CHAIRMAN, speaking to the Southern Governors Conference, asked rhetorically: What would the Army be without its five divisions stationed in the South? The answer could well have been that the Army will be that much weaker when formal announcement is made of plans to slash the 1st Armored Division at Ft. Polk, La.

LAST TWO BATTLESHIPS with the active fleet, the Iowa and Wisconsin, are being employed on the picket line in Exercise Strike Back. With destroyers and submarines, they are deployed as a screen between the main forces of the Atlantic Striking Force in the Norwegian Sea and the areas from which attacks by land based aircraft may be launched. They are also being employed as Anti-Surface Raiders and are being used to refuel the destroyers on picket duty. After Strike Back they will return to the States for mothballing. The Iowa carries the flag of RAdm. R. S. Parks, USN, Commander of the Surface Action Group.

VADM. ROBERT B. PIRIE, Commander of the Atlantic Striking Force, objected, at a press conference aboard the USS Forrestal, to a reference to battleships "being on their way out." He said the word "battleship" may be on its way out, but that he would like to see something useful done with their hulls. He suggested they might be used as fast fleet oilers, as missile ships, or as command ships. As conventional BBs, he said, their usefulness has faded out because there are other types which can project their power so much further.

ARMY COMMANDERS ARE CONCERNED that new weapons for the streamlined "Pentomic" divisions may be delayed further because of the budget squeeze. Much fanfare was made when reorganization of the divisions was announced concerning the advent of new weapons, but these have been long in coming. The pioneer 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., just now has received the first production model of the "Mechanical Mule," the versatile half-ton weapons carrier.

THE SERVICES ARE WONDERING if the White House will continue to "discriminate" against the Navy and Air Force in rank for Service Academy Superintendents. The USMA Superintendent now holds three-star status after all three Superintendent billets had been reduced by President Eisenhower to two-star assignments.

KNOCKED OUT OF COMBAT SERVICE by an economy kick which deactivated the Army's last mule outfit, 10-year-old Trotter 28 Sept. takes on a new assignment. Trotter has been reassigned from Ft. Carson, Colo., to replace famed Hannibal as the official mascot of the West Point football team.

ENLISTED WEATHER FORECASTERS of the Air Force can claim "educated" estimates for the flight crews they serve. The Air Weather Service reports that 93% of its airmen forecasters have graduated from high school; 39% have had some college training. Air Force-wide average is 75% high school graduates and 19% college attendance.

Bell Telephone Laboratories, Murray Hill, N. J.

DREAMS WITH A PURPOSE

"Leave the beaten track occasionally and dive into the woods. You will be certain to find something you have never seen before."

ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL

THERE have always been dreams and high hopes in the communications business. And always, for something over eighty years, there has been continuous and determined research to help make those dreams come true.

For before there was a telephone there was a telephone laboratory.

First it was just two men, Bell and Watson, in an attic workshop. Then the idea grew, as the need grew, and the practical values of research became more and more apparent.

Today there are more than 10,000 people at Bell Telephone Laboratories, of whom over 3000 are trained scientists and engineers.

Their work covers many fields and goes exploring and developing in many directions. But everything is directed to one goal. It is the betterment of communications service and the finding of ways to provide this better service at the lowest cost to the customer.

The great assets of the Bell Laboratories are the judgment and knowledge that have been gained from years of experience, combined with the enthusiasm of minds versed in the newest scientific knowledge.

There is also the encouragement of initiative through a careful balance of pure research and developmental work. The scientist is given a freedom that is rare in industrial work.

Some of the great achievements of the Bell Laboratories have come in recent years.

The Transistor is a Bell Telephone Laboratories invention. So is the Solar Battery. So, too, are the switching machines that have brought about Direct Distance Dialing. And, again, there was the development of those wonderful amplifiers for the underseas telephone cables.

It all adds up to a great deal of progress. But there is much more to come. All that has been done is but the beginning.

Never have there been so many opportunities for wholly new developments in telephone service and so much well-rounded research behind them.

Each day there are excursions off the beaten path, revealing something that has never been seen before.

Working together to bring people together
BELL TELEPHONE SYSTEM

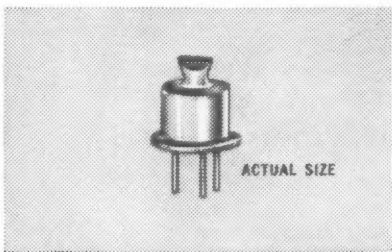

After retirement ... what?

An old established company serving the U. S. and Hawaii needs men capable of higher earning — we have several openings at the present time — in many cases you can select the area in which you want to live. Write for full information. Box GT, THE JOURNAL.

BELL SOLAR BATTERY

Converts sun's rays into usable amounts of electricity by means of specially treated discs of silicon. Has been used experimentally to power rural telephone lines.

THE TRANSISTOR

One of the break-throughs in science that come only at rare intervals. This mighty mite can do many of the things that an electronic tube can do and more besides!

DIRECT DISTANCE DIALING

By the end of this year some 5,300,000 telephone customers in 440 localities will be able to dial directly to as many as 35,000,000 telephones all around the country.

■ BAMBERG, GERMANY—The old American custom of "lending a hand" took on the appearance of a full-scale construction project when the 10th Infantry Division's 3d Reconnaissance Squadron, 7th Cavalry, provided a heavy wrecker to move one of Bamberg's famous landmarks.

The landmark, a statue of a Franciscan Monk with a fountain, once blocked truck traffic with its island in the middle of a narrow Bamberg street. Bamberg city officials finally called Bamberg Post Commander Maj. Gerald R. Wilson, Maj. Wilson contacted Lt. Col. James D. Akins, 3d Recon. Squad. C.O. who dispatched the 5-ton wrecker for the job.

Sp3 Jimmie D. Baysinger's wrecker handled the moving job in five hours, shifting approximately five tons of stone statue, base, and fountain to a new location nearby.

■ SAN DIEGO—A committee representing Marines of the San Diego Marine Corps Recruit Depot were proud witnesses as Diana and Deborah Smith, representing the children of San Diego, unveiled a bronze plaque recently establishing the Marines as sponsors of the cub bear exhibit at the new Children's Zoo.

The unveiling followed a presentation by the Marines of a check for $3,968.97 representing an "out-of-pocket" voluntary fund drive to sponsor the popular exhibit. The original goal was $3,000. The additional money will go to the building of a new, larger swimming pool for the cub inhabitants.

In the committee were: Capt. C. E. Hogan, representing command officers, S/Sgt. R. E. Gibbs, Jr., staff noncoms and permanent enlisted, and Pvt. D. R. Thompson, representing recruits of the Depot.

■ LACKLAND AFB, TEX.—A successful 1957 Air Force Aid Society drive, netting a total of $23,027.59, was put in the records this month for Lackland AFB.

Base project officer, Capt. Richard B. Wood, praised the work of organization's campaign managers for a "remarkable job in a short time."

The total was only two thousand dollars under Lackland's 1956 record-breaking Aid Society collection, believed top in the Air Force.

Top percentage participation was attained by the 3700th Food Service Squadron, 3700th Pre-Flight Training Group (Officer), 3700th Air Base Group, and 3720th Basic Military Training Group.

Officers Wives Operate Unique Club For Enlisted Men Visiting Washington, D. C.; Home-Like Atmosphere, Low-Cost Accommodations Attract Thousands Annually

THE thousands of Servicemen who crowd into Washington, D. C., on week-ends and holidays have learned to make their home base in a rambling, old fashioned, red brick mansion.

At the 85-year-old Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club, 1015 L Street, N.W., they find the home-away-from-home which they jokingly discounted back in the "boondocks."

There are several reasons why this unique Club is "home" to the Serviceman.

For one thing, it caters exclusively to him. Only enlisted male members of the Armed Forces are admitted. Officers, on the rare occasions when one is permitted to enter the Club, must wear civilian clothing.

ANOTHER REASON for the Club's popularity is that the excellent accommodations and food are inexpensive. A bed is only $1.25 per night except for three private rooms which are 50 cents more. If the demand for beds is more than the Club can meet—which it almost always is on week-ends—those who arrive late are permitted to stay—free of charge—wherever they can find a place.

For those men seeking quiet, restful relaxation, the Club offers comfortable and beautifully furnished lounges, a library, recreation room, television, billiards and other attractions.

For those eager for the city's attractions, the Club is more favorably located than many of the highest-priced hotels. It is only a few short blocks from the heart of downtown Washington.

Another feature of the Club which the men enjoy is complete freedom from the regimen of military life. They are free to come and go as they like. There are few rules which they have to observe at the Club. The two basic rules are that all men must show their leave passes when they register and no liquor is allowed in the Club.

Army Pvt. Donald Stubblefield, a six-months Reserve trainee stationed at Ft. Belvoir, Va., told a JOURNAL reporter the Club attracts him because it "offers all of the comforts of home," and because "it is the most economical place to stay in Washington."

These sentiments were echoed by Navy Airman Apprentice Leo W. Alston, NAS, Norfolk, Va.; Marine Sgt. Peter Sumrall, MCAS, Cherry Point, N. C.; and S/Sgt. Howard F. Kranz, Bolling AFB, Md.

Seaman Lewis Colarossi of the Patuxent River Naval Air Command summed up the way the men feel about the economy angle: "For the amount of time the average Serviceman spends in his room on week-end libervy," he said, "it just isn't worth it to stay at an expensive hotel."

All were equally enthusiastic about the home-like atmosphere of the Club and the shining state of cleanliness in which it is maintained.

The only disgruntled comment was Sergeant Krantz' complaint that "a second cup of coffee costs a dime."

With the exception of one man, none of those interviewed knew who operates the Club or who pays for its upkeep. Nor were they aware that it is strictly a non-profit venture and that the nominal charges for rooms and food (even for second cups of coffee) wouldn't begin to add up to the $65,000 which it will cost to operate the Club this year.

This is a silent tribute to a large group of distinguished women who devote their time and energy to the Club, but who remain quietly in the background.

THE "OWNER-OPERATOR" of the Club is the Woman's Army and Navy League, whose members are wives of officers of the Armed Forces. Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower is the Club's Honorary President, and the names of many of the other Club members are equally well-known throughout the world.

Every Sunday for almost 25 years,

UNIFIED SERVICE—Officers' wives from all of the Services make up the governing group which rules the 85-year-old Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club in Washington, D. C. Officers of the Club are (left to right) the Mesdames Norman Peterson, John P. German, Ralph S. Canine, Herman Feldman (President), Ralph E. Wilson, David Stonecliffe and Bruce Bradley. Other officers absent when the picture was taken are the Mesdames Charles P. Cabell, Lester Hanks, Schuyler Pyne and Frederick J. Statts.

Mrs. Arthur MacArthur has arrived at the Club early in the morning to put on the coffee. Few of the men who chat with the gracious lady know that she is the mother of the U. S. Ambassador to Japan, and the widow of a Navy Captain whose father (Arthur MacArthur) and brother (Douglas MacArthur) both served as Chief of Staff of the Army.

Honorary Vice Presidents of the Club are the wives of the Joint Chiefs of Staff: Mrs. Nathan F. Twining, Mrs.

Club; on Tuesday, the Navy's Bureau of Medicine and Surgery wives take over; on Wednesday it's the Air Force wives; Thursday, Marine Corps wives; Friday, wives of Naval Communications officers; Saturday, Coast Guard wives alternate with Army daughters. On Sunday, the volunteers come from all Services and from JANGO.

Mrs. B. L. Baker, wife of Col. Baker, USAF, heads the volunteer group and she says she has no trouble getting all the help she needs. If one of the volunteers leaves the Washington area because her husband has been reassigned, the out-going worker usually recruits an in-coming wife, Mrs. Baker says.

The ladies and their predecessors have worked at the Club 365 days out of every year since it first opened its doors in 1898. Many of the tasks they perform are menial in nature, but nothing is too small or too burdensome if it contributes to the smooth operation of the Club.

On a recent visit to the Club a JOURNAL representative found Mrs. Francis M. McAlister patiently threading key tags with strings during her three-hour stint at the registration desk. Her husband, Major General McAlister, USMC, is stationed on Okinawa and the Club activities help to keep her busy while he is away.

HUNDREDS OF OTHERS like Mrs. McAlister keep the Club operating smoothly. Their volunteer services help to hold operating costs at a minimum.

FUNDS TO OPERATE the Club come mostly from membership dues (all officers' wives, even honorary members, pay dues), from donations, from benefits which the Club sponsors and more recently from the United Givers Fund. The Club has been a member of UGF for only three years and this year marks the first time that the Club will be recognized outside of the Defense Department for UGF assistance. That means that a man at the Quantico Marine Base, for example, can indicate on his UGF donation slip that all or part of the money is to go to the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club.

Membership is open in the Club to any woman who is the wife, widow, mother, daughter or sister of a commissioned officer of any one of the Armed Forces. He can be active, retired or a Reserve. Commissioned women officers also may be members. At present there are between seven and eight thousand members.

Membership Secretary is Mrs. Paloh E. Wilson, wife of RADM. Wilson (USN), who has just been nominated by the President for three-star rank. She is assisted by Mrs. Schuyler Pyne, wife of RADM. Pyne, USN.

CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE CLUB can be made through either the Endowment Fund or the Dedication Fund. Income from the former goes toward the general support of the Club and contributions often are made in memory of someone instead of sending flowers on funeral occasions. Mrs. William Dwight Chandler, wife of Capt. Chandler, USN-Ret., manages the Endowment Fund.

The Dedication Fund provides rooms or beds in the Club to honor the memory of a loved one or a friend. A bed costs $150; a room, $500 to $600. Donations of any amount are accepted, however. Mrs. Haywood S. Hansell, wife of Maj. Gen. Hansell, USAF-Ret., is in charge of the fund.

Plaques throughout the Club tell the story of these donations. One room was dedicated by former Secretary of Defense and Mrs. Robert A. Lovett in memory of former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. Another room and its beds was dedicated by Admiral and Mrs. Arthur W. Radford in memory of her son, Maj. Robert C. Maze, USMC. Still another is dedicated to the late General Hoyt S. Vandenberg and two other Air Force officers, Capt. Stanley M. Anderson and Lt. Vachel W. Anderson, II.

Dozens of wives' clubs throughout the Armed Forces, as well as other organizations connected with the military, have dedicated beds in the Club.

Marines who stay overnight in Room 14 (dedicated by the Marine Corps) sleep in beds which are dedicated in memory of Col. John D. Blanchard, Lt. Col. Henry A. Ellis, Jr., and Lt. Col. G. Forbes Bastian, or in honor of Brig. Gen. Samuel S. Jack and Col. Jens Aggerback.

In the air-conditioned annex, formerly an old carriage house, all of the beds in the upstairs dormitory were presented by Navy groups. The downstairs recreation room was the gift of the Army Quartermaster Corps Wives. The Club's library came from the Air Force Officers' Wives Club. Room 4 was dedicated by Coast Guard wives "in memory of the men of the Coast Guard."

Hundreds of other dedications are told on bronze plaques throughout the rambling old mansion which the Club has occupied for the last 33 years.

At present the Club has beds for 157 men. Many others sleep on the chairs, sofas and floor. Last year more than

ATTENTION CO's

Do you want to tell your command about the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club?

An excellent movie depicting the activities and facilities which the Club provides for men on leave in Washington, D. C., can be obtained by commanding officers who are interested in helping their personnel find low-cost accommodations in the Capital.

The Club has overflow bookings on week-ends, but space is almost always available during the week. Copies of the movie can be obtained by writing to the Club, 1015 L Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

18,000 men were lodged at the Club. Hundreds of others were turned away because of lack of facilities. During the same period, 15,760 meals were served without profit in the Club's canteen. At Thanksgiving and Christmas, the meals are free.

In addition to the three private rooms which the Club boasts, it has one room with two beds and 12 dormitory-type rooms with from six to 36 beds. In addition, 24 roll-away beds are brought out for the week-end rush. Each bed has its own locker and each floor has its own showers and lavatory facilities. Razor blades and soap are provided free through the courtesy of Gillette and Lever Brothers.

The biggest crowds, according to Mrs. Irene May, who retired last July after seven years as the Club Manager, arrive at the Club "on payday weekends." She says, however, that "every Saturday is a big day."

At the moment, the Club is trying to get more men to use its facilities during the week. The Club is hopeful installation commanders will pass along the word that the Club is open seven days a week and that men who stop over in Washington on week days when they are on leave or furlough are welcome at 1015 L St.

Most of the Club's week-end guests are sailors, followed closely by soldiers and Marines, in that order. Airmen turn up in fewer numbers, and there is usually only a trickle from the Coast Guard.

Service men from the Armed Forces of countries allied with the United States also are welcome at the Club. One Canadian sailor drops in about every six months when he hitchhikes from Canada to Florida. He stops off at the Club both going and coming.

Many Servicemen passing through Washington with only a few hours to spare use the Club to rest up, bathe or shave. The doors are open day and night.

Among the officers and executive members of the Club, not previously mentioned, who see to its day-to-day operation are: Mesdames Ralph J. Canine, John P. German, Bruce Bradley, Frederick J. Statts, Walter Bedell Smith, C. D. Eddleman, E. L. Cummings, Silas B. Hays and Edmund B. Taylor.

Also Mesdames Joseph H. Wellings, Howard Collins, Dudley D. Hale, Walter R. Agee, Kenneth Jorgenson, Vernon Megee, Reginald C. Harmon, and Allen Winbeck.

Honorary Officers Emeritus, in addition to Mrs. MacArthur, are Mesdames Oliver Spaulding, Smith Hempstone, Luther Sheldon and Walter S. Grant.

On the Force level, artillery units are organized as separate batteries. The battalion has been dropped. The batteries are all either self-propelled or helicopter transportable. Self-propelled 155mm gun batteries contain eight guns of two 4-gun platoons. Their long range (25,000 yards) serve to offset the loss of range in the artillery regiment's weapons. The Force eight-inch howitzer batteries contain three platoons of two guns each. The eight-inch howitzer can go anywhere that a tank can go.

THE HONEST JOHN and Little John rocket batteries are organized as four launcher batteries of two platoons, each with two launchers. The truck-mounted Honest John has a high degree of road mobility. The Little John, which is helicopter transportable, can move with infantry units.

"Although these weapons were designed primarily for the delivery of atomic munitions," the Board said, "the development of extremely effective high explosive warheads for them gives them an added utility which will greatly increase their value."

Army Reports 'Copter Blind Flights

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Reference your publication dated 31 August 1957, article titled "Marine 'Copter Unit Makes Blind Flights."

I would like to go on record as stating that the Instrument Section, Dept. of Rotary Wing Training, United States Army Aviation School has been flying all types of helicopters on instruments since 1955. We have accumulated approximately 3000 hours of hooded "blind" flight time and 150 hours of actual instrument flight time. GCA approaches are consistently made in helicopters under conditions of near zero-zero, i.e., 50 ft., 1/16 of a mile. Approaches are made from other facilities, below minimums prescribed for fixed wing aircraft.

The program of instruction for our warrant officer helicopter pilot candidates course calls for 30 hours of instrument flight training. Four of these pilots, members of an over-seas operational unit, were inadvertently caught in weather at night. Flying H-34 type helicopters, they contacted GCA, let down thru a 4000 ft. overcast and made successful approaches in near zero-zero conditions. None of the pilots had previous fixed wing instrument training.

All of our helicopter instrument flight experience has been in aircraft equipped with standard, off-the-shelf, fixed wing instruments and without benefit of automatic stabilization equipment.

We are not accustomed to claiming to be first in anything; however, I would like to see the Army receive proper credit for our experiences and success in furthering the state-of-the-art.

Please publish this for all to see.

Marine Corps Compresses Artillery Force; Throws Out Three Weapons

AS part of a move to streamline fighting units so that they dove-tail with the "vertical envelopment" doctrine, the Marine Corps has eliminated three support weapons.

Knocked out of the division artillery structure is the 4.2-inch mortar, the 155mm howitzer, and the 4.5-inch rocket.

These weapons were eliminated because they "no longer meet specific needs for fire support and only serve to complicate logistic support," the Fleet Marine Force Organization and Composition Board states.

The Board, headed by Maj. Gen. Robert E. Hogaboom, USMC, Deputy Chief of Staff, Marine Corps Headquarters, said the Corps is now able to "fight as task-organized battery and battalion sized groupments of varying calibers and types of weapons instead of in rigid T/O-battalion organizations."

THE BATTERY, rather than the battalion, is the basic fire support unit for the infantry. In the future, every battery, both in the regiment and in Force artillery, will be capable of operating independently of a battalion or group headquarters.

The reorganized Artillery units stress self-sufficient helicopter-transportable ordnance capable of independent action on the battlefield. Each regiment includes three Close Support Battalions equipped with 105mm or 120mm mortars, and an Intermediate Support Battalion equipped with 105mm howitzers.

Each Close Support Battery has eight heavy mortars (105mm or 120mm) divided into two platoons of four mortars each. The platoon forward observer sections in a battery operate in close concert with the battalion's rifle companies. The establishment of a continuous command liaison between infantry and artillery, the Board said, "eliminates the need for an artillery liaison officer and party at the Infantry Command Post. Such intimate relationship facilitates the collection and exchange of target information and provides a high degree of fire-support co-ordination, the Board said.

UNDER THE NEW SET-UP, the Battalion Headquarters Battery is tactical and administrative only. It no longer provides maintenance and supply support to the Close Support Batteries. Its fire direction center (FDC) is established within the Infantry Regimental CP and provides the same close relationship on the regimental-battalion level as is achieved at the battalion-battery level.

The Intermediate Support Battalion—it has three 105mm howitzer batteries—is organized similarly to the Close Support Battalion. It can operate as a unit to provide general support or reinforcing-type fire to the Division as a whole, or segments can be detached and sent out to bolster a Close Support Battalion.

The revamped Artillery structure places the counter-battery mission—formerly a Force artillery responsibility—in the hands of the Artillery Regiment.

THE ARTILLERY REGIMENT now has 96 field pieces instead of the 72 in the old structure. "In large part," the Board said, "this offsets the loss of 36 4.2-inch mortars from the three infantry regiments."

The Board acknowledged that the replacement of the 105mm howitzer with the 105mm mortar and the 120mm mortar in the Close Support Battalion, and the 155mm howitzer with the 105mm howitzer in the Intermediate Support Battalion, "has resulted in a loss of range and destructive capability in the regiment. This sacrifice had to be made if the artillery of the division was to be able to embark, land and fight with the division's infantry."

A Headquarters spokesman pointed out that the loss of destructive artillery power will be overcome in great measure by the Corps ability to provide all-weather close-air support. In fact a third Air Support Radar Team (ASRT) has been added to the Marine Air Support Squadron. These teams, operating under control of the Direct Air Support Center

ARDC Cuts Flying Accidents By 20% To Contribute To New Air Force Mark

The Air Research and Development Command made a significant contribution to the recent all-time low major aircraft accident rate established by the U. S. Air Force during the first six months of 1957.

During the first half of this year a 20 per cent reduction in the frequency of ARDC aircraft accidents was reached in comparison with 1956. For its flying safety program in 1956, ARDC was awarded the Daedalian Trophy—presented annually by the USAF Chief of Staff to the major Air Force command with the outstanding program for the year.

The new AF record of 14 accidents per 100,000 flying hours—compared to the previous low in 1956 of 15 accidents per the same number of flying hours—reflects the steady improvement in the program since 1946 when the most recent high of 61 major accidents was registered per 100,000 hours.

To accomplish its mission, ARDC uses almost every type of operational military aircraft—as well as test flying newly developed models—throughout the United States, and over Canada, Alaska, and the South Pacific.

Despite increased use of jets, the number of planes lost by ARDC has been reduced almost one-half, and the number of aircraft fatalities reduced 67 per cent over previous years.

Col. W. O. Jackson, Jr., ARDC's Director of Operations, said, "This outstanding success is attributed to the ARDC center commanders who, despite their heavy research and development work loads, have made it their personal business to insure that their commands fly safely."

Col. Heffelfinger Heads Sqdn.

Lt. Col. Hugo W. Heffelfinger is the new commander of the 4th Division's 2d Reconnaissance Squadron, 8th Cavalry, Ft. Lewis, Wash.

He succeeds Lt. Col. John E. Reid, who will become the division Brigade Headquarters Assistant Executive Officer.

the unit, weapons qualifications and in field training exercises.

The 104th Service Battery also won the trophy last year for its 1955 performance.

The unit was commanded by Lt. Robert W. Hanauer during 1956—the period for which the award was given. He began his career in the New York National Guard when he enlisted in Battery C, 104th Field Artillery Battalion in 1947. He rose through the ranks to his present grade, and assumed command of Service Battery in 1955. He is presently commander of Battery C.

The present Service Battery commander is Capt. Lawrence Gerhard who first enlisted in the 104th Field Artillery Battalion in 1933 and is a veteran of 18 years military service—13 with the 104th.

COLLEGE CHANCE SET FOR 200 IN SEA SERVICE

Navy and Marine Corps enlisted men are invited to participate in the Navy College Aptitude Test which leads to officer rank.

The tests will be conducted 14 December and nominations for participation must reach the Bureau of Naval Personnel by 16 October.

Under the NROTC program the Navy will send about 200 enlisted men to college for four years. The Navy provides uniforms, pays school costs and gives $600 a year retainer pay to successful applicants who are given midshipman rank.

Candidates must be between their 17th and 21st birthdays, unmarried, physically qualified and high school graduates or possess an equivalent certificate.

First Army Transport Unit Uses H-37 Helicopter

The Fourth Transportation Co., Lawson Army Air Field, Ft. Benning, Ga., has become the first such Army organization to incorporate Sikorsky H-37 helicopters.

The unit, commanded by Maj. William A. Howell, has received seven of the new aircraft, with nine more scheduled for delivery. They are replacing the H-34 helicopters.

Powered by two 2,500 h.p. engines, the H-37's can carry 26 fully-equipped troops or 10,000 pounds of cargo. Unlike conventional craft they have five rotor blades instead of the usual four.

In addition, the H-37 features a forward clam shell door which opens in the front of the aircraft, facilitating loading and unloading.

WB-66s Scout Weather, Replacing "T-Birds"

Douglas WB-66D twin-jet aircraft are replacing the single jet T-33 "T-Bird" and reciprocating engine aircraft for TAC's Weather Reconnaissance missions over water.

The jets, already in operation from Shaw AFB, S. C., are expected to improve the potential of both TAC and the Air Weather Service. Eventually, they will be used by tactical units deployed around the world.

The first missions being flown out of Shaw by the Ninth Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron, revolve around the 1,500 mile yo-yo type track within the general area from Bermuda to Shaw, San Salvador to Shaw, southwest into the Gulf of Mexico and back to Shaw.

Former Army Secretary Says Defense Spending Has Initiated Era Of Growth

The U. S. defense spending program has "forced" a scientific revolution in America and initiated a new era of economic and cultural growth, Frank Pace, Jr., has told the American Bankers Association.

The President of General Dynamics Corporation addressed the bankers' 83d annual convention at Convention Hall, Atlantic City, N. J. He said, "The urgent drive for survival, the necessity of reaching for the ultimate, manifest in our substantial defense research, has forced a scientific revolution in America, has compelled us to channel our energies and ingenuity into basic research, as well as into mass production techniques, and in consequence has initiated a new era of economic and cultural growth."

"The tremendous scientific and technological advances brought to fruition by our defense spending—nuclear fission and fusion, astronautics, new aerodynamic and hydrodynamic forms, electronic computation, communication and automation—have already spilled into industrial, commercial and consumer fields," he declared.

"These by-products of defense spending are now adding immeasurably to our capacity to develop new resources, to create new technologies, new industries, new products, new employment and ultimately new standards of living, new standards of health, new kinds of wealth, not only for ourselves but for the hungry, economically underdeveloped nations of Asia, Africa, the Middle East and Latin America," Pace said. Because the penalty for lagging or faltering in the arms race is quite conceivably annihilation, he added, our programs of research are based on a philosophy of "reaching for the ultimate," a process that has condensed the progress of 50 years into 10.

"Although the primary purpose of defense spending is to maintain the nation's posture of international military and political leadership," he declared, "it has had, nevertheless, a tremendous effect on our nation's economic system."

Yet, the former Secretary of the Army said, there seems to be on the part of businessmen and economists a tendency to regard defense spending as necessary only for military survival purposes. It is this concept of defense spending, Pace said, that "makes us so vulnerable to the stock themes of Russian propaganda: false peace offers, false disarmament talks and false promises of peaceful co-existence."

"At the slightest hint that the enemy's policy of military aggression may be diminished or diverted," he said, "many of us are all too willing to drop the burden of our arms."

Pace pointed out that there is an apparent relationship between the stimulus of large defense spending and "a substantially increased rate of growth of gross national product."

Admitting that "any massive monetary injection into our nation's over-all economic function would have an appreciable impact on the gross national product," Pace said, however, that the nature of defense spending, as distinguished from its volume, "results in the accession to our society of economic, scientific and cultural benefits of enduring and non-military value."

These benefits fall into two categories: "first, in the enduring benefits accruing from conservation of human resources and their development, the planned increase and preservation of national manpower and man-skills. Second, in the enduring benefits accruing from the immense range of present national programs of scientific research and technological development."

Col. Eason Assumes New Post At Meade

Col. James F. Eason, who is in his 23d year of active military service, has assumed duties as Special Assistant for National Guard Affairs for the 2d Region, U. S. Army Air Defense Command, with Headquarters at Ft. George G. Meade, Md.

Besides its command of numerous units of the Regular Army equipped with the Nike Ajax guided missile and conventional guns, the 2d Region also has the responsibility for supervision of training, assistance, and testing of anti-aircraft National Guard Units located in the 2d Region area, which includes 14 states and the District of Columbia.

From July 1955 to July 1957, Colonel Eason was assigned to the Army Element of the Joint U. S. Military Mission in Ankara, Turkey, where he served as Chief of Combat Arms Section and Chief of AAA Division.

He and Mrs. Eason, and their children, Phyllis, 16 and Thomas, 13, reside at Ft. Meade.

National Guard Unit Wins Eisenhower Trophy Second Consecutive Time

A crack Jamaica, Long Island artillery unit of the New York National Guard was presented the coveted military award, the Eisenhower Trophy for 1956, the second consecutive time.

Service Battery, 104th Field Artillery Battalion, part of the 42d Infantry (Rainbow) Division, was cited as the outstanding company-size unit of the New York National Guard when he enlisted in Battery C, 104th Field Artillery Battalion in 1947. He rose through the ranks to his present grade, and assumed command of Service Battery in 1955. He is presently commander of Battery C.

The award has been given annually since 1947, when the then General Dwight D. Eisenhower agreed to lend his name to the trophy. It is based on outstanding performance by the unit on attendance at drill periods, the overall strength of

U. S. COAST GUARD

Secretary of the Treasury—Robert B. Anderson
Commandant—Vice Adm. Alfred C. Richmond

THREE Coast Guard cutters, the Storis, Bramble and Spar, have returned to the States after completing a historic journey across the top of the North American continent.

They were the first ships flying the American flag to complete the "Northwest Passage." The Storis, commanded by Cdr. Harold L. Wood, and the Bramble, led by LCdr. Harry H. Carter, put in at Boston, Mass., this week where "welcome home" ceremonies were held.

Similar ceremonies were held at Bristol, R. I., home port of the cutter Spar. The Spar is under command of LCdr. Charles V. Cowing.

From Boston, the Storis and Bramble will continue to home port in Miami, Fla., with a stop off in New York City.

In making the "Northwest Passage" journey, the Three ships completed a 13,000-mile circumnavigation of North America.

The objective of the trip was to prove that there is a practical passage across the top of the continent. A need for a "Northwest Passage" did not exist until the Military Sea Transportation Service took on responsibility of the Arctic Supply run. MSTs ships cruise north each year to supply DEW-line defense outposts in the Arctic. The ships dash in as soon as the water thaws, discharge their cargoes, and dash out before they are caught in winter ice. The danger of being trapped by the ice has been acute in the western DEW-Line sector.

The Coast Guard cutters, led by the Canadian icebreaker Labrador, showed that there is an alternate route for deep-draft vessels which are threatened by ice.

With the exception of icebreakers, only shallow draft vessels—and few of these—had previously accomplished the transit from ocean to ocean.

Promotions

Coast Guard Headquarters estimates that promotions will go to 18 officers, effective 1 October.

Indications are that Headquarters will advance two to commander, seven to lieutenant commander and nine to lieutenant.

Asian Flu Strikes

The Coast Guard has stopped recruiting on the Eastern Seaboard in a move to check an outbreak of Asian influenza at the Coast Guard Receiving Center, Cape May, N. J.

Before the termination of enlistments, the admission rate of recruits suffering from the disease had been steadily increasing. At the high point of the epidemic, 205 men were suffering from Asian flu.

About 2,000 officers and men attached to the Center, including permanent detail, have been inoculated.

Transfers from Cape May are being restricted to men who have not been exposed to the disease.

All recruits from the 2d and 9th Coast Guard Districts (which recruit from the Mid-west) are being sent to the Receiving Center at Alameda, Calif., for training.

Recruiting at the 1st, 3d, 5th and 7th Districts (which recruit from the Atlantic Seaboard) will be resumed after the situation at Cape May is clarified, Headquarters said. The curtailment is expected to last for about three weeks.

LEAD ATOMIC TESTS

Officers from all the Services are being selected to fill billets on Joint Task Force Seven to carry out next summer's Atomic tests at the Eniwetok Proving Ground in the Pacific.

In charge of the Task Force is Maj. Gen. A. R. Lueddecki, USAF, stationed at the Pentagon.

An important objective of the tests, say DoD and Atomic Energy spokesmen, is the further development of nuclear weapons with greatly reduced fallout.

Want To Travel After Retirement?

Pentagon Tells Details Of Privilege

(THE JOURNAL publishes herewith the text of a statement prepared by the Retired Activities Unit of the Army covering travel privileges on Government-owned vessels and by military aircraft.)

Travel on Government-owned vessels and military aircraft is granted certain retired members on a "space available" basis. This means that members may be assigned only that space which is not required for the transportation of personnel traveling on official orders. Because of heavy military requirements for space on Government transportation, surplus space for space available passengers is extremely limited.

TRAVEL ON GOVERNMENT-OWNED VESSELS

It is the policy of the Department of the Army to limit space available transportation to the following retired personnel:

- Members of the Regular Army.
- Members retired for disability.
- Members retired under title 10, United States Code, section 3911 (formerly Title II, Public Law 810, 80th Congress—Regular Army or Reserve commissioned officers who have completed 20 years or more of active Federal service with at least 10 years of such service in commissioned grade).

- Members retired under title 10, United States Code, section 1293 (formerly section 14, Public Law 379, 83d Congress—warrant officers of any component who have completed 20 or more years of active Federal service.)

Retired members who are contemplating travel on a Government-owned vessel should be aware of the following conditions and limitations:

Dependents are eligible for space available travel only when accompanied by the retired member.

Travel on a space available basis is limited to one round trip in any 12-month period.

There is a nominal charge for travel which includes cost of subsistence and service. The specific amount will be determined by the terminal authorities and is payable at the port of embarkation.

Usually assignment of space on a Government-owned vessel cannot be made until 4 or 5 days prior to sailing. However, it is well for the retired member to make application well in advance of the time he desires to travel.

Assignment of space is made for the going portion of the trip only. Arrangement for return space must be made with the appropriate command having jurisdiction of return space assignments at the overseas port.

If return space is not available, the applicant must be prepared to procure commercial travel accommodations.

There is no authority for movement of privately owned automobiles for retired personnel except when personnel are traveling overseas pursuant to retirement orders.

Applications for space available travel to an overseas destination should be submitted to one of the terminal authorities listed below.

Commanding General, Brooklyn Army Terminal, 1st Avenue and 58th Street, Brooklyn 50, N. Y. Areas served: Southampton, England; Bremerhaven, Germany; Casablanca; Naples and Leghorn, Italy; Piraeus, Greece; Guantanamo, Cuba; San Juan, Puerto Rico; Canal Zone; St. Johns, Argentina, and St. George, Newfoundland.

Commanding Officer, Bay Area Army Terminal Center, Fort Mason, Calif. Areas served: Honolulu, T. H.; Guam; Manila; Kwajalein; Okinawa; Taiwan; Yokohama, Japan.

Commanding Officer, Seattle Army Terminal, 1519 South Alaskan Way, Seattle, Wash. Areas served: Whittier, Kodiak and Adak, Alaska.

Applications for travel should include the following:

- Full name, grade, service number, address, and telephone number of the retired member.
- Name, age, sex, and relationship of each dependent for whom transportation is requested.

Date available for travel.

Copy of retirement orders.

TRAVEL BY MILITARY AIRCRAFT

Travel by military aircraft (other than MATS) within the continental limits of the United States is granted on a space available basis to all personnel who are receiving or are entitled to receive Army retired pay. The following restrictions on space available air travel must be considered:

Travel on aircraft operated by the Military Air Transport Service is not authorized.

Overseas travel by military aircraft is not authorized.

Dependents are not eligible for travel on any aircraft.

Request for travel by military aircraft must be made in person, at an Air Force base. Reservations cannot be made in advance. Applicants for air travel should have proper identification (preferably DD Form 2A or DD Form 2A (Res)—Identification Card) in their possession, and they must wear their uniform both at time of application and while travelling.

This percentage equalled the '56 figure. Assistant Secretary of Defense (Supply and Logistics) Perkins McGuire said the dollar value of awards to small businesses increased from about $3.5 billion in fiscal '56 to $3.8 billion in fiscal '57.

Company Plans Life Insurance Sales To Military

The Academy Life Insurance Company of Colorado Springs, Col., which has been established to sell life insurance on a non-agency basis to military personnel, this week received approval to amendments to its prospectus filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

This prospectus covers the offering of the company stock.

The company, which includes a number of military personnel on its advisory board and board of directors, intends to offer 750,000 shares of common stock, with a par value of 50¢ per share, at $1 per share, according to the prospectus.

Actually, the SEC earlier had approved a prospectus for the stock sale by the company.

Revisions were made necessary, for one reason, when the Pentagon objected to some military members of the board, who are on active duty, using their military ranks and titles.

The revised prospectus omits any rank, title or military address.

Company officials have expressed the hope that they will be able to sell life insurance to military families with "direct selling," thereby eliminating commission expense.

Similarly, it is stated that the stock sale will be on a non-commission basis.

Col. Henry I. Syzmanski, USA-Ret., is President.

The advisory board includes Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, USA-Ret., and Maj. Gen. Willard W. Irvine, USA-Ret.

The prospectus also shows that the advisory board includes Lt. Gen. Stanley R. Mickelsen, USA, retiring Commanding General of the Army Air Defense Command, and Maj. Gen. Harry P. Storke, USA, formerly of Ft. Carson, Col., who will become Army Chief of Information in October.

As stated above, their ranks and titles are omitted from the prospectus.

Advisory board members also include Lt. Col. Edward M. Conklin, Jr., USA-Ret. (Col. USAR) and Capt. Franz O. Willenbacher, USN-Ret.

Several Air Force officers also are connected with the company.

Col. Wm. B. Offutt, Commander of Ent AFB, Col., is on the advisory board. A director of the company is Lt. Col. Ralph W. Adams, USAF, Assistant Staff Judge Advocate, Air Defense Command, Colorado Springs.

The address of the company is the Exchange National Bank Building in Colorado Springs.

Marine Corps Will Hit 180,000 By Early Fiscal '59; Forced Attrition Will Be Averted, Manning Levels Will Drop

The new 10,000-man slash in Marine Corps strength ordered by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson is expected to be made without the necessity of involuntary release.

The Marine Corps will be required to reduce strength to 180,000 by early Fiscal Year 1959. The estimated September end-strength of the Corps was 198,000.

The initial order by Secretary Wilson required the Marine Corps to cut back to 190,000 by 31 December.

In implementing the first order to slice 10,000 men, Headquarters was forced to institute a program of involuntary releases for 2,000 enlisted Leathernecks. The first 1,000 will be released during the period from 1-10 October and the second increment 1-10 January.

BRIG. GEN. JAMES P. BERKELEY, Marine Corps G-1, told THE JOURNAL that the Corps will meet the 190,000 requirement during October, November and

Brig. Gen. Berkeley

December without resorting to additional force-outs.

Regarding the new order to pare back to 180,000, the Man-power Coordinator said that since Fiscal Year 1959 will be a high turnover year, the end-strength figure can be reached without a force-out program.

In issuing the order to cut, Secretary Wilson gave the Marine Corps until 30 June 1958 to reduce to 188,000. At the same time, the Corps was told it could delay the remaining 8,000 reduction into early Fiscal Year 1959.

General Berkeley said that "if 'early' is interpreted to mean a reasonable length of time," he was sure the Corps would be able to meet the required level by normal attrition. He stated that if the Corps is given the first three or four months of Fiscal Year 1959 in which to make the 8,000-man reduction, normal attrition would take care of the situation.

At the same time, General Berkeley admitted that the loss in manpower would have an adverse effect on the Corps' combat capability. When the Corps once was ordered to reduce to 193,000 men, the Marine Corps Commandant told Congress that there would be a resultant loss in "sustaining power."

An additional reduction of 13,000 men "obviously reduces the Corps' staying power even further," General Berkeley said.

He said that the Corps objective is to maintain the highest possible level of combat capability. While the Corps does not plan to inactivate any units in its combat or tactical structure, some units will be forced to operate below normal manning levels.

In the Force support troop structure, however, the Corps may be forced to eliminate some units.

General Berkeley said the 3d Marine Division in the Pacific probably would be maintained at a higher manning level than the two Stateside divisions.

THE REDUCTIONS IN THE FORCE troop support units, the G-1 stated, will not be across the board. He explained that some combat support units will operate at higher manning levels than others because of their essential missions.

For example, he said, the medical units will be kept at a higher manning level than the fighting troops. As another example, he cited the communications units.

In affecting the cuts, "we are shooting for reductions where we can save men in security forces, base service and supply, so they can be thrown into the Force troops," in the event of an emergency, he said.

were denied access to the seas they could no longer survive.

"Third, if America were denied use of the seas she would be divested of her allies and forced back to her own shore line to fight the war alone from her continental bases.

"Fourth, the loss of the seas would result in loss of any initial advantage from an atomic superiority because this advantage could not be followed up by deployment to Europe of the military and economic support of North America."

SACLANT'S CONCEPT FOR DEFENSE of the Atlantic briefly is:

First, to strike, with the maximum atomic capability, the enemy airfields and naval bases which support the forces which would seize control of the seas.

Second, to defend the Atlantic as far forward as possible.

Third, to provide close-in protection of our trans-Atlantic sea lanes.

It is to train for these concepts that the current maneuvers are aimed. Serving the 15 flags of NATO, the naval forces of eight nations are exercising under a single command with a single purpose—to defeat Soviet attempts to separate Europe from America.

Segregation Shifts

The Army-Tulane University football game scheduled for 16 November will be played at West Point instead of New Orleans because of a Louisiana law requiring segregated seating in stadiums within the state.

Citing an assurance of unsegregated seating, Army authorities state that the Army-University of Virginia game at Charlottesville, on 26 Oct., will be played as scheduled.

STRIKE BACK

ating from Iceland, England and Scotland.

Strike Back is scheduled to be completed on 28 September. There will be a preliminary critique on board the USS Forrestal en route to ports in Southern England, but full assessment of the tests will not be known probably until December.

EXERCISE SEA WATCH is progressing simultaneously with Strike Back. It covers the broad expanse of the North Atlantic to simulate the effort that would be necessary to protect the sea lanes between North America and Europe. Admiral Jerauld Wright, USN, Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic, who is sponsoring the maneuvers, told newsmen that he believes Russia's huge build-up of submarines is aimed at our lines of communications. Sea Watch was designed to give Allied nations training against such attacks.

Conducting Sea Watch are Admiral Sir John A. S. Eccles, RN, and Air Marshal Sir Bryan V. Reynolds, RAF, joint commanders, Eastern Atlantic Area and the IBERLANT area, and Admiral Wright in his capacity as Commander Western Atlantic Area. More than 70 ships, 15 squadrons of aircraft and about 20 submarines are participating, as well as shore-based maritime patrol aircraft. Opposing the main force are surface raiders and a large group of submarines. One group will travel as far south as the Straits of Gibraltar in an attempt to block the flow of commerce on the Atlantic.

EXERCISE FEND OFF, scheduled from 26 to 28 September in the Iceland-Shetland sea areas, is an extensive anti-submarine operation, also under command of Admiral Eccles and Air Marshal Reynolds. Fend Off will employ anti-submarine barrier group and maritime patrol aircraft. About 30 ships and five maritime patrol squadrons will be assigned to prevent the passage of a group of "enemy" submarines. The barrier, including anti-submarine submarines, will be about 200 miles in depth in order to detect and prevent the transit of a large force of submarines.

DEEP WATER exercise is being held in the Mediterranean 24 to 28 September, featuring a huge helicopter and amphibious landing near the Dardanelles in Turkey. RAdm. Robert W. Cavanaugh, USN, commands the operation, with Brig. Gen. Ralph K. Rottet, USMC, commanding the 10,000 U. S. Marines of the 4th Marine Air-Ground Task Force. On the third day one of the regiments of U. S. Marines will be replaced by a Turkish regiment. Simultaneously Greek troops will be making a landing on the shores of Greece. An amphibious landing also will be made in northern Italy during this period.

EXERCISE SEA SPRAY was the earliest of the maneuvers having been held while U. S. and Canadian ships were on their way across the Atlantic to participate in Strike Back. Under command of VAdm. R. B. Pirie, commander Striking Fleet Atlantic, Sea Spray stressed coordination between surface, air and undersea units of the combined forces. It began 4 September and concluded on the 13th. The weather was extremely bad, one man was lost overboard, his body being found later, while two others were injured during refueling operations.

EXERCISE PIPE DOWN, also under command of Admiral Pirie, will conclude the series. It will be held between 13 and 16 October to provide additional training to U. S. naval forces on their return crossing. British forces will accompany them part of the way. Combined air operations will be held with U. S. and U. K. carriers participating.

The importance of these "live" exercises, held every three years, is emphasized by the fact that, unlike SACEUR, the Supreme Allied Commander Atlantic, has no forces permanently attached to his command.

It is only during these every-three-year exercises that the member nations assign naval forces to his direction so that

THE U. S. elements en route to the rendezvous point for Exercise Strike Back underwent an unscheduled inspection when a Soviet fishing trawler passed completely through its formation while refueling underway.

The refueling took place under almost complete fog conditions. The five carriers were deployed on a line abreast at intervals of about 2,000 yards with a screen of destroyers eight miles ahead and one destroyer about 1,200 yards in front of each carrier to locate and warn shipping which might be in its path. Contact with the oilers was made entirely by radar.

The trawler was located by one of the destroyers northwest of the formation. It was warned of the formation overtaking it and requested to change its course. The trawler, however, ignored the request, stood on its rights, and maintained its course. As a result the U. S. force overtook it so that the trawler slowly went through the entire formation.

Capt. William E. Ellis, USN, Chief of Staff to RAdm. C. S. Cooper, commander of the Carrier Division Six, with his flag aboard the Saratoga, said that a number of good views of the trawler were obtained through breaks in the fog. It was a typical Soviet trawler about 125 feet long, equipped with radar. It carried no flag, but a hammer and sickle was clearly observed on its superstructure. The antenna was not revolving at the time he saw it, he said.

work continually at his Norfolk headquarters. They are faced, they say, with the following four vital considerations in their analysis of any future war in the NATO complex:

"First, all the nations in Europe are dependent upon the heavy tonnage of seaborne traffic by cargo ship, passenger ship and tanker for their economic support in peacetime and for their reinforcement and survival in war.

"Second, if the European nations
